FROM SUNRISE OVER THE OCEAN

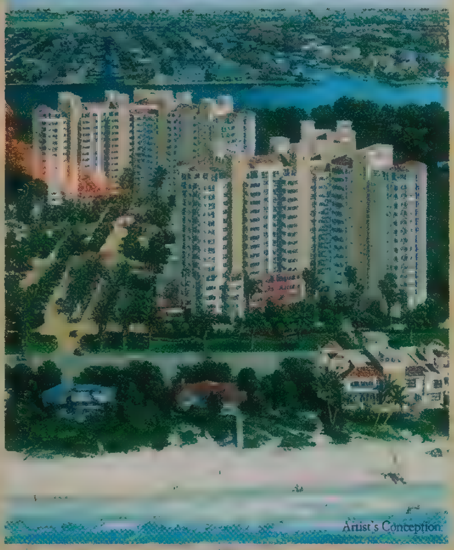
TO SUNSET ON THE INTRACOASTAL.

Introducing The Magnificent Tower II.

Actual Views

Rising majestically between the Ocean and the Intracoastal, Toscana's magnificent Tower II will offer the most spectacular floor to ceiling water views ever witnessed.

Here in a 17-acre environment of elegance, luxury and romanticism, residents of these fabulous new two and three bedroom residences, from 2,315 sq. ft. to 3,493 sq. ft., will enjoy many exquisite amenities. The Grand Piazza's five acres of landscaped beauty include an estate-manicured lawn, heated swimming pools, spa, and tennis courts. There are brick-paved walkways with trellised canopies and fountained alcoves. The fabulous, recently completed Ocean Club is reminiscent of a Tuscan villa and serves as an emotional touchstone for both celebration and relaxation — all just steps away from the ocean.



Toscana residents are serviced by a full staff of professionals, including concierge and valets. They enjoy the convenience of on-site fitness and business centers, billiard lounge, and party room.

Toscana's wonderful Highland Beach location, on the Boca Coast, is near excellent restaurants, diverse shopping and Boca Raton's many cultural events.

Two and three bedroom residences are pre-construction priced from the $400,000s to $2 million.

Toscana's sales office is located within Tower I, at 3700 South Ocean Boulevard in Highland Beach. Telephone 561-278-9933 or toll free 888-278-9933.

TOSCANA

OCEAN CLUB RESIDENCES ON THE BOCA COAST

Success of Tower I Inspires Tower II.

Due to Tower I's unprecedented success, Toscana's second tower is underway earlier than anticipated. For those desiring immediate occupancy, however, Tower I is open and ready for move-in right now! Even with 90% of these wonderful residences sold out, Tower I still offers a few select residences with spellbinding Ocean and Intracoastal views.

END OF SEASON SALE

Bought your pillows & comforters elsewhere? Guaranteed you overpaid!!!

CAVEAT EMPTOR (BUYER BEWARE)

Don't be misled by advertisements for European goose down comforters at supposedly "SALE PRICES". We'll show you that most of those ads do not represent good values at all. Just because these advertisements are from major departments stores - do not be fooled-all down is not alike.

The quality of goose down is measured in fill power (also know as loft). Fill Power is the amount of cubic inches one ounce of down will fill. Our 800 plus Siberian Goose Down will fill between 800 and 850 cubic inches of space. "The Company Store" catalog always lists the fill power of their goose down. Bring in their catalog and we'll generally save you 50% off their prices.

Goose Down Comforters are an investment, with proper care a fine quality comforter will last a life time. Our high quality 100% cotton shells, or tickings, are divided into baffle boxes. The baffle box has a mesh channel separating the top from the bottom of the comforter. The baffle allows the down to give you maximum loft without collecting in one section of the comforter. We do not cater to the consumer that is more interested in price than quality. Our most valuable asset is our customer. We will only sell a product that we believe to be the highest value at the best price. Cheap low quality down should fill garage cans not pillows and comforters. All our goose down pillows and comforters contain 100% goose down even though it is legal to combine 70% down and 30% feathers and label the item 100% goose down. Remember feathers are those things with quills, down is similar to tiny balls of cotton, absolutely no hard quill. Our goose down comforters and pillows are machine washable because they only contain down.

The larger the individual down cluster the higher the fill power. The higher the fill power the better the comforter will insulate thus providing more comfort to you. Since you are spending 1/3 of your life in bed it should be as luxurious as possible. - Why not?

Error In Oil Company Road Map Recalls Memory Of Nazi Landing Here In WWII

By Dan Rattiner

Howard Owen and his wife Karen first saw the map on a table in an antique shop on Main Street in Fredericksburg, Virginia. It was one of those gas station road maps they used to give away for free in the gas stations.

NEW YORK it said on the top. Compliments of your Sterling Independent Dealer. There was a picture of a gas pump. A metal sign on it read A QUAKER STATE PRODUCT. The date was 1940.

Howard is a published novelist and the managing editor of the Virginia Times, a daily paper. He and his wife live nearby in Midloathian, Virginia and they often go antiquing. Howard is a collector of old maps.

There seemed nothing special about this old map, published on the brink of the most catastrophic world war in history, and the price was only five bucks. But Howard and Karen would be driving to Sag Harbor, New York the following month, taking an annual trek to visit some friends for a week. They bought it. It would make a nice house gift. It also might serve as a roadmap for the trip in an odd sort of way, or a back up to one of the current road maps.

Back at their home, Howard had a look at the map. In a town called Montauk, there was a section called HITLER HILLS. Could this be? What a strange name. He got out a magnifying glass. Yes it was.

"Maybe it was named that years before," Karen volunteered. "When Hitler was popular. Who knew what the future would bring?"

The Owens arrived at the home of Marty and Judy Shepherd ten days ago and, among other things, after presenting their gift, pointed out the curious name on the map. The next day, Marty called me at Dan's Papers and he brought it by. There was no doubt about it. A section of Montauk which is known today as HITHER HILLS is marked on this map as HITLER HILLS. And it is an error. At no time was there ever a Hitler Hills in Montauk.

Promised Land

On the other hand, the story of how Hither Hills got its name is almost as fantastic as this error. Here's a parcel of land that has an ocean view, and is within walking distance of the beach. And a New York City daily newspaper, back in the 1930s, was giving away pieces of it as a marketing promotion to boost circulation. It worked, too.

For nearly sixty years before 1931, this piece of beachfront land was known as the Benson Reserve. It had considerable value. But by 1931 it had almost no value. The stock market had crashed. The country was spiraling into a deep depression which would take nearly a decade to get out of. No one would be interested in this 200 acres. Except for a Manhattan daily newspaper called the New York Mirror, which was in fierce competition with The New York Daily News. The circulation of the News was about 1.5 million. The Mirror was right behind at 1.2 million. A marketing executive at the Mirror came up with this promotion. The newspaper should buy this parcel – it could be bought for almost nothing – and divide it up into little 20 by 60 foot parcels. Thousands of them. Then give them away free, one to a customer, to all new subscribers. BUY A SUBSCRIPTION TO THE MIRROR AND GET

Following in the tradition of Hamptonites George Plimpton, Peter Maas and Tony Randall, Sy Coleman is a new daddy in later life, in his case, seventy-one! Congratulations to him and his wife Shelby.

Hope Perelman, daughter of Revlon Chairman Ron Perelman celebrated her engagement to businessman Seth Perelman with a big party last Thursday at Veruka in Manhattan. The club is owned by Noel Ashman and Robbie Kravis son of another Hamptonite Henry Kravis. Hope won't have to change her name, she won't even have to hyphenate it.

This Friday, Jessie Della Femina is previewing her own line of clothing at the Della Femina family oceanfront mansion in East Hampton. The clothing will premiere to the public at the Calypso store in St. Barts this fall, and attending the party this Friday will be Christiane Selle the owner of that chain of stores, also Joy Behar, Jill Rappaport and Randolf Duke. Jessie is fourteen and the daughter of ad legend Jerry Della Femina and his wife Judy Licht, TV newswoman.

Last Saturday's afternoon Polo match at Two Trees ended on a sour note with a questionable call by one of the umpires. With twenty seconds left to play and Adam Lindemann's Mega team ahead, two of the stars of the game Lucas Criado of Mega and Marianno Aguerre of White Birch collided. Aguerre was knocked off his horse and the umpires ruled the collision was the Mega player's fault. White Birch got a free goal and a penalty shot which they made to win the game.

Overseas moves aren't foreign to us.

At Despatch Moving & Storage, we're as experienced at moving you across the Atlantic or across the Island. (In fact, we recently won a Customer Quality Achievement Award from North American Van Lines.)

We know the language. The tariffs. The legalities. The subtle nuances of overseas moves. We have to. Because not only do we move complete households, we move decorators, interior designers and international art collectors. You'll find that we're as sensitive to your possessions as we are to your specific needs.

If you're considering an overseas move, consider Despatch. In fact, the thought of using someone else is foreign to us.

Au revoir.

Refurbishing the winery and vines soon became his passion and today his efforts are well reflected in the high quality wine of this wine. Full flavored with rich, ripe fruit. (4816)
BRIAND 1996 (Bordeaux Superieur)	8.95	107.40	Soft and delicately fruity with ripe cassis fruit and generous flavors. Fertile clay-limestone and sandy soil yield a wonderful wine here. (4813)
GARDUT 1998 (Premieres Cotes de Blaye)	9.49	113.88	One of the oldest properties of the region, Chateau Gardut has been in the Revaire family for 4 generations. Made from 75% Merlot, this 1998 is smooth and supple with a soft, ripe berry character, cocoa nuances and supple tannins. (4811)
JOUANIN 1996 (Cotes de Castillon)	9.95	119.40	Located along the right bank of the Dordogne River, the Cotes de Castillion produces a pleasing wine that offers immediate charm due to its high proportion of Merlot. (4801)
MAISON-NEUVE 1996 (Montagne-St.-Emilion)	10.95	131.40	A superb combination of 60% Merlot, 30% Cabernet-Sauvignon and 10% Cabernet Franc, this 1996 combines uncommon backbone with a framboise scented, richly textured and agreeable style. (4805)
PEYRAUD 1996 (Premieres Cotes de Blaye)	8.95	107.40	Powerful and full, the wines from this small estate offer great value in Bordeaux excellence and have become one of our most popular Bordeaux. (4807)
ROC DE GRIMON 1996 (Cotes Castillon)	8.95	107.40	From one of Bordeaux's oldest winemaking regions, this vineyard sits on lush, fertile soil and produces supple, deliciously fruity wines. (4800)
ROLAND LA GARDE 1998 (Premieres Cotes de Blaye)	9.49	113.88	This is a warm, fruit laden wine that displays dense, concentrated flavors which is quite uncommon for the region and a direct result of late harvesting. Healthy, balanced tannins ensure long aging in the bottle. (4815)
ROUSTAING 1998 (Bordeaux)	8.95	107.40	This is a very old estate and still has a priory wall and window from the Middle Ages that is incorporated into the cellar. Very claret-like in style with a predominance of red berry fruit aromas and flavors, this 1998 is ripe and full bodied with a superb balance. (4803)
THEBOT 1996 (Bordeaux)	8.49	101.88	A delightful full-bodied red with vibrant fruit and a touch of spice. (4812)
DE VERDUN 1998 (Medoc)	10.49	125.88	This bend of Cabernet Sauvignon and Merlot displays plenty of sweet strawberry fruit with a ripe texture and mouthfilling flavors. Delicious now, it will continue to thrive for many years. (4817)
VIEUX CHATEAU LANDON 1996 (Medoc)	14.95	179.40	A large proportion of Cabernet Sauvignon gives a classic structure to this wine. Aged in oak for a full year, it displays good body, intense cassis fruit and great harmony. (4814)

Why did Tiger choose TLC?

He insisted on seeing the best.

When it came to improving his vision, Tiger wasn't about to play games. So the world's best golfer took dead aim at the world's best laser vision correction center, TLC Laser Eye Centers. After all, TLC doctors have done more successful laser eye surgeries than anyone. Anywhere. "I felt TLC had the experience and track record I demanded," says Tiger, who now sees better than 20/20. "I am extremely pleased with the results."

So are his fans. Following surgery, Tiger went on to win 5-straight official PGA tournaments. A feat that hasn't been duplicated in over 50 years. "Thanks to TLC, the hole and everything now looks bigger," says Tiger. Including his winnings.

When it comes to your vision, insist on the best. For a free consultation, call 1-888-CALL-TLC.

It's almost here!

Kathleen and Charlie Marder would like to announce that their long anticipated

Tree & Shrub Sale

will begin on

Thursday, August 31st

Most of their trees and shrubs will be 40% off. You have to come in even if you haven't been waiting for that special, rare, or unusual tree or shrub. Planting conditions are excellent (and include our two year guarantee if we do the planting) You'll also find:

- 50% off a great assortment of select antiques
- 50% off select bags, straw hats and silk flowers
- 25-50% off select gifts and garden ornaments
- 25-50% off herds of annuals, perennials and tropicals

So dodge the crowds,
pause between parties,
and join Kathleen and Charlie at Marders, where you're invited to take advantage of the most abundant savings of the summer.

Hills

A PIECE OF LAND IN THE BEAUTIFUL HITHER HILLS SECTION MONTAUK OVERLOOKING THE OCEAN. The Mirror cost two cents a day, $6 a year. Buy a year, get a parcel. Buy two years, get two parcels. On two parcels you can build a summer bungalow.

The promotion created quite a sensation in New York, and went on for almost a year. Local people out here called this section The Mirror Development. The Mirror people thought the section should be called "Hither Hills." Hither Hills had a nice ring to it. Hither Hills stuck. And numerous houses went up. Then the promotion ended.

That's the story. Today a buildable lot in Hither Hills sells for about $150,000. The streets, named by the newspaper, are named after American Presidents — Grant, Lincoln, Washington and so forth. They wind around up into the hills. And every landowner in Hither Hills, because of a legal codicil put in the old deed by Arthur Benson, has exclusive right to use all the beachfront property in front of Hither Hills. It extends for two miles. And it is owned in common. Private property.

But back to the map. How could this error have gotten into a roadmap with a printing in the tens of thousands? Freud said nothing happens by accident. Maybe so. Could it have been a German admirer of Adolph Hitler who was also a typsetter? Someone mad at the Quaker State Company? Someone mad at the printing company that made this map? Someone just in need of a new pair of glasses?

Forty miles to the west of Montauk, in Yaphank, Long Island, there was an annual gathering of German Americans celebrating Adolph Hitler and the Nazi party. America's entry into the war was still two years away. But Hitler's Wehrmacht had already swept through Poland and France. And so tens of thousands of people, mostly German Americans, had formed the American Nazi Party, the "Bund." By the thousands they would come out every summer to "Camp Sigfried" and put on uniforms, hold torchlight rallies, listen to speeches and march in formation. Soon Hitler would come.

It was a chilling thing for many Americans to see, and they could see it on the screen at the movie theatres, when the NEWS OF THE DAY would come on before the featured presentation to give a visual, filmed update of the world's affairs. Much of this footage, produced by Movietone News, narrated by a very serious sounding announcer, survives to this day.

Less than two years after this map was published, the Japanese invaded Pearl Harbor, and the United States entered the war against Germany and Japan. Just one month after the outbreak, Hitler made a decision to land Nazi spies somewhere along the Atlantic Coast of America. A date was set for the landing as June 13, 1942.

A special training camp was set up on a farm on Quenz Lake near the Prussian town of Brandenberg and for two months, a group of four German soldiers were trained in the art of sabotage and subterfuge. They learned about dynamite, about pipe bombs. They were given cigarette lighters that could fire bullets. They were given pens that contained poison to take in the event they were caught.

On the night of June 13, a German submarine surfaced about 100 yards beyond the surf line just off Hither Hills. Residents of the area later recalled hearing the noise of the diesel engine at that hour, wondering what it was. The submarine moved along the coastline to the west, then came to a halt just offshore where Atlantic Beach in Amagansett is today. This was six miles west of Hither Hills. A hatch opened. Some sailors inflated a rubber boat. Then, the four Nazis, in full uniform, climbed in, and, along with trunks, suitcases and boxes, were taken through the surf to the beach. It would be the only time that enemy soldiers had ever successfully landed on American soil.

The sailors left. The soldiers got out of their uniforms and into "fishing" clothes. They buried the dynamite boxes and the rest of the gear. Then, in their fishermen's disguises, they walked to the Amagansett Railroad Station and took a train to Manhattan. Eight days later, in Astoria, Queens, the FBI arrested them. All but one, the one who turned the others in, was hanged.

What is the possibility that in Berlin in the late winter of 1942, an aide to Adolph Hitler, going over maps of the Atlantic Coast of the United States to look for a landing place, opened up a copy of the Quaker State map of New York, and set it out, open, on a table in Hitler's War Room?

Hitler points.

"Was ist das Hitler Hills?" he asks. ●

The beach just got closer.

The Game

Wild Play At Home Decides The Outcome Of The Artists-Writers Softball Game

By Dan Rattiner

The Artists-Writers Softball Game, which has been played every year in East Hampton for nearly half a century, was contested once again last Saturday on the sandlot baseball field behind the Waldbaums on Newtown Lane. The bottom of the ninth inning was, by all accounts, the most electrifying ever played, with the possible exception of the time singer Paul Simon hit a line drive single that scored actor Christopher Reeve to win the game for the artists ten years ago.

> "They want me out because they didn't like my call?" "They're upset," Hope said. "He shouldn't leave his day job..." Zuckerman was saying.

I think the heat had a lot to do with it. We've had a cool and wet summer, the temperatures rarely climbing above eighty, and so on this day few were prepared for temperatures rising into the low nineties. By the bottom of the ninth inning in this hot, dusty game, many were weary from the heat, among them, Jimmy Lipton who announced this game over the p.a. system behind the batter's cage, and in spite of having the scoring records in front of him, could not keep the score straight. By the sixth inning, he had corrected the score to Artists 6 and Writers 2, from Artists 5, Writers 2. And in the eighth, he stood corrected to Writers 9, Artists 5, not 10-5.

In any case, going into the bottom of the ninth inning, it looked like another Writer's victory. (The Writers have won more than two thirds of the games played over the years.) The Writers had added a run in the top of the ninth to stretch the lead to a true ten to five. And the artist's pitcher, Director Michael Cane, was tiring. (Jimmy Lipton continually and deliberately mistook him for Michael Caine, complimenting Cane on how much he had learned about American baseball between films.)

And so the bottom of the ninth began. Harry Chaver, who was pitching for the Writers at this point, got the first batter out. Then the second. With just one more out, the game would be over. People began heading for the exits.

But then the Artists started a little rally. There was a walk, then a single, then another single. A run scored. There was nothing fancy about it. But that last out just wouldn't come. When pitcher Michael Cane, tired as he was, came up to hit for the Artists, however, there were runners on first and second and the score was Writers 10, Artists 6. As Lipton said, Cane had an opportunity to redeem himself for earlier transgressions. A home run, as unlikely as it might seem, would clear the bases and bring the Artists to within one.

Cane did not hit a home run, however. He hit a line single, and when the dust had cleared, both men had scored and Cane was on first. It was 10 to 8, the Writers still ahead.

At this point, craziness began. On first, New Yorker writer Ken Auletta began arguing with me that Michael Cane should not have been allowed to hit, because he had already been taken out of the game and once taken out, a player is not supposed to be put back in. I was first base umpire at this point, having been banished from umpiring behind the mound which I will talk about later, and I argued there is a long tradition of people being put in and taken out of the game at will, and it was okay. By this time, Leif Hope, who is manager for the Artists, had come over, and said all right if that's how he, Auletta, felt about it, he'd bring in a pinch runner for Cane. He then ordered a runner over who was there for such a short time I did not notice even who he was. Auletta argued that this person too had been in earlier and taken out, and now this person was gone and was replaced by artist Randy Rosenthal, who Auletta allowed he couldn't remember if he'd been in or not, so he guessed that was okay.

Anyway, with that confrontation over, we went

on to a far, far larger one. The entire game turned on it. Artist Dennis Lawrence had singled Rosenthal to third, keeping the inning alive, and now Billy Strong was up. Two outs. Writers 10, Artists 8, bottom of the ninth.

On the second pitch, Billy Strong hit an easy grounder to short. A quick pickup and a throw to first and we'd all go home. But Billy Strong is a quick runner, and the shortstop, who fielded the grounder easily, became worried about it. He noted Strong running full bore to first, hesitated, looked over to see Lawrence running to second, and then, hurrying, threw a line drive to Auletta at first to supposedly end the game. Strong was beaten by a step. But the throw was low and wide on the infield side of first, and Auletta, reaching for it, grabbed it to end the game, but then saw it skitter off his glove down the line into right field and off into foul territory toward the crowd. Auletta cursed. And Strong had now rounded first and was heading for second.

Auletta just stood there. He walked a few steps toward the ball in foul territory, apparently in the belief that this was a wild throw and therefore need not be attended to. Meanwhile, everyone was running around the bases.

Finally, Auletta ambled over and picked up the ball from one of the spectators sitting on the grass, and then realized that Strong was rounding third and heading for home. All these runs were scoring and the game was still going on! But a spectator had touched the ball which should have ended play!

Auletta fired to home plate. Strong slid. And he was tagged. Safe? The game would be over with the score Artists 11, Writers 10. Out? The inning was over with the game tied, 10-10.

What a mess.

Now the home plate umpire, Hal Schroer, called Strong out, but a loud contingent from the Artists, who had rushed out on the field, demanded he be called safe. There had been a whole lot of dust on home plate after all. How could anybody see? Indeed, Strong was still laying there, on his back, his legs draped across the dust of home plate, exhausted by his effort. His teammates had to help him up.

"It's ten to ten," an artist shouted. "Let's call it a tie."

"What tie?" a Writer yelled. "We have to play extra innings. Anybody got anything more important to do?"

By this time, I was at home plate, having run in from first base. I volunteered the information that a spectator had touched the ball in foul territory at first base while everybody was rounding the bases and this set the rhubarb off in another direction.

If that had happened, the play was instantly dead. So now the question was who touched it, when did he touch it, and where were all the runners when he touched it?

"The runners get an extra base on a wild throw,"

EH Summer Resident May Only Be Allowed To Sit Quietly At Home In The Dark

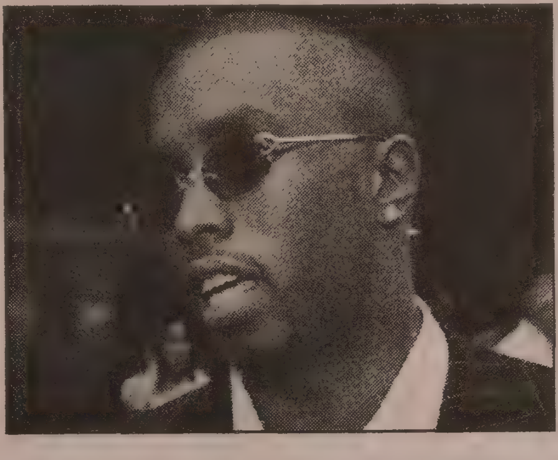
By Dan Rattiner

Just before the old Soviet Union came crashing down in the late 1980s, I visited Moscow to see it first hand for myself. People, living in a dictatorship, had to abide by very strict rules, one of which was that they could not travel abroad, or even move from one town to another within the Soviet Union, at least without official permission. Everyone had what was called an internal passport, and few people had ever been to the resorts in Odessa or even to Moscow, where they were trying to limit population growth. Another rule made it a crime to assemble more than fifteen people in one spot without a license.

That same year I went to Russia I returned home to East Hampton to find that the town had passed a new law requiring people to get a permit to hold a public gathering. Having just experienced what it was like to live without the freedom to congregate, one of the basic human rights in America, I was startled by this and actually went to Town Hall to ask about it. It wasn't that they were going to allow some people to get a permit and others not, I was told. The purpose of the law was really to just let the police know where the traffic and crowds were going to be. That way, they would know to be nearby.

Of course there were laws – there have always been laws – against blocking the highway, playing music too loud, running around naked on the streets, destroying private property and so forth and so on. Those could be enforced as they always had been, by neighbors phoning in complaints and by direct police observation.

All of this leads me to the events of last week, when an application for a gathering at a private home was made by Sean "Puffy" Combs for 250 people to join him on his property on Gardiner's Bay Sunday of Labor Day weekend from 3 p.m. until 1 a.m. the following morning. This would be the second party that Combs would have thrown this summer. Last year he gave two parties and was fined $2,500 for having exceeded the rules of his permit with one of them. And as I read about it and read of the discussions before the town board that took place and of his ultimate rejection, I began to wonder if we were looking not at the forest but the trees.



Are we really willing to argue that some people should be allowed to have a party and some not? Are we really willing to argue that somebody will make too much noise at a party before they have done so, because in the past they held a party where there was too much noise and so now they have lost the privilege to hold a party? In the old Soviet Union and in other fascist states – I recently went to Cuba – the authorities assume that if more than fifteen or twenty people get together they're up to no good. To argue that in America is dangerous ground, in my opinion.

Three years ago I found myself in a traffic jam on a lightly traveled road, known as Cobb's Road in Water Mill, puzzled by what was holding everything up. As I got closer, I found that I was in a line because right in the middle of the street there were some valet car parking people stopping traffic to see if the people inside had valid party invitations to what was the Forstmann's Annual Huggy Bear Tennis Tournament. I personally had neither a valid nor invalid invitation, but mostly I didn't like being held up from where I was trying to get, which was to Amagansett. So I took the appropriate action, which was to call up the police on my car phone and tell them what was going on. I believe they took care of it. And I believe the next time they had the Huggy Bear party, they did not hold up traffic.

Two years ago I went to attend a party being thrown by Ivan and Wilzig in Water Mill. The Wilzigs have built a small renaissance castle on a hill there, and out on Deerfield Road in front of their house and also at quarter-mile intervals going down the road toward the Montauk Highway, they had stationed guards and security people, some of whom had shoulder holsters visible with pistols in them. That might have been fine behavior as far as they were concerned, but it was not fine as far as I was concerned, and there are laws against displaying weapons in public. On this occasion, I wrote about it in the paper, and once again, it caused changes to be made.

But where do we draw the line? Puffy Combs is very wealthy. He has just celebrated his thirtieth birthday, having made a fortune as owner of Bad Boy Records. He's black, a celebrity, has a beautiful girlfriend and has been in trouble in the past, but he's never been convicted of anything. Yet, anyway.

About a month ago, there was a huge fundraising party that Vice President Al Gore attended in Water Mill. Maybe 1,000 people were present. As the climax to this party, a terrific display of fireworks went off, raining cinders down on the neighborhood. There were security guards on the roof with guns, helicopters and a tremendous number of cars. Yet I doubt there was either a permit gotten ahead of time for this, or fines levied after it was over for blocking traffic.

The tradition in this country, in fact the law of the land, says that you can't lock up somebody or fine them until they've done something against the law. How many women have gone to the police and said, "My husband is threatening to kill me," or "There's a man stalking me," and the police say, "I'm sorry, we can't do a thing until he actually does something."

The transgressions, whatever they might have been a year ago at Combs' Fourth of July party, were in the scheme of things not very major. Too much noise, probably too much parking on the street. Probably streets blocked because of traffic. Combs' fine, $2,500, is not an unmeaningful sum.

I spoke at length to Linda Miller, who is the town clerk involved with party permits, and she told me that whether Puffy Combs gets a party permit or not, it is not for his lack of trying.

"In fact, his representatives are presenting plans to abide by all the laws. The problem is all the crashers. People find out about the party and then they all go there and clog the streets. In other words, it's not that Puffy Combs should be fined. It's that the media should be fined for giving the man so much publicity that everybody wants to go to his party." (Dan's Papers?)

Here's a man, under the current law, who can't just invite people over and have a party like anybody else. Is it too much trouble for the police to turn away the wannabes? They can divert traffic on a public road for safety reasons and often do, after all.

Anyway, Puffy Combs application was rejected on Tuesday. On Thursday night, lawyers for Mr. Combs, who had threatened an Article 78, whatever that might be, were back with a revised proposal: he wouldn't have 250 people, he would have 225, and the party would go from 3 p.m. to 10 p.m. instead of 3 p.m. to 1 a.m. and he signed an agreement that said if he exceeded his permit allowances, he would not apply for another gathering permit for another three years.

Well, maybe it's just all come to this. Here in the Hamptons, things have gotten so far out of hand that we have to violate the constitution. It may not be such a bad thing. Today, Puffy Combs, tomorrow, a gate at the Shinnecock Canal. Sorry, full. Go to police headquarters and get a valid pass. If there are any available. Or come back tomorrow. ●

As we go to press we hear that Alec Baldwin and Kim Basinger have been denied a party permit. There's a rumor it was denied because the town was afraid of a lawsuit by Combs if he were singled out. There should be no lawsuits. And no permit denials. There should be only penalties for bad behavior. After the fact.

Enter Up To Thirty Golfers And The Team With The Most Points Wins

By Dan Rattiner

Every year Dan's Papers conducts a poll to determine who the best golfer in the Hamptons is. We call the Maidstone Club, the National, the Atlantic, the Shinnecock where Tiger Woods competed in the U. S. Open in 1995 (and lost). We call Noyac, Westhampton, Bridgehampton. Who is your best golfer? Who has the lowest handicap? Who won the course championship this year?

This article is not about that poll. Instead, this article is a report on the very latest golf championship challenge that has come to the Hamptons.

It took place on Thursday, August 17, and pitted the staff of Dan's Papers against the staff of the Poxabogue Golf Course. Both teams were undefeated going into this match. And the reason was the Dan's Papers Poxabogue Challenge had never happened before.

Everyone had a great time. And we expect to do it next year at this time again. We had a trophy, which was on display at the Fairway Restaurant Cafe adjacent to the pro shop prior to the matchup. And we had very unusual rules. The team with the highest score would win. And each side could invite up to thirty individuals. They just had to be either employees or relatives of either the newspaper or the golf course.

The match would be for nine holes. A barbecue would follow. No money would change hands. And nothing would be raised for charity.

The match commenced at exactly 4 p.m. when the golf course was shut down to public play and thirteen members of the Poxabogue staff and twenty members of the Dan's Papers staff went out onto the course to begin "shotgun" fashion. This meant that one foursome went out to each of the nine holes, stood on the tee and waited until exactly 4:15 when they began playing. Thus everyone started together and everyone finished nine holes together. The scorecards were handed in at the barbecue.

...most of the Dan's Papers employees, when they get a break go out on the deck and smoke, or go out on the deck and watch other people smoke.

Golf, as you may know, has been described as a good walk ruined. Off the tee, you hit the ball as hard and as far as you can, and if you do it right, it goes very, very far and, amazingly there is some part of you that says "I've got it.I figured this game out. I am going to be a star." And then, trying too hard, you flub the next shot.

Where you have rules that are upside down though, you get very bizarre conversation.

"Nice shot."

"I'll do worse next time."

"I had a 15. I'm upholding the honor of Dan's Papers."

At the end of each hole, golf etiquette requires that the person who has the best score gets to hit first. But is the best score the highest or the lowest? Every foursome made its own decision. It was a humbling experience. In the end, it is believed that a record low score was shot for Poxabogue. Also a record high score. The low score was shot by James Weir, the son of Dan's Papers ad salesperson Arlene Weir. James, who is a golf pro at the Quogue Golf Club, shot a 29. We almost hooted him out of the barbecue.

A record high score, on the other hand, was shot by two individuals in this tournament, 17 year old Marak Squires and16 year old Gabriel Rattiner, each of whom turned in a score of 300, something they each achieved by essentially playing croquet with the golf ball and club on their last hole, shooting a 150 and 138 on that hole respectively.

At the BBQ, judges felt that although the behavior of these two boys on the final hole was encouraged and cheered by their Dan's Papers teammates, croquet is not golf, and they were disqualified. As a result, there were 18 acceptable scores handed in by Dan's Papers entrants and 13 handed in by Poxabogue Golf Course entrants. I might note that it was agreed by all that this handicap, either 20 entrants to 13 or 18 entrants to 13, was fully justified since most of the Poxabogue employees, when they get a break, go out and play golf and have gotten pretty good at it, while most of the Dan's Papers employees, when they get a break go out on the deck and smoke, or go out on the deck and watch other people smoke. Many Dan's Papers entrants had never held a golf club in their lives.

Under the circumstances, Poxabogue entrants would be adept at dithering their way into higher scores while Dan's Papers entrants wouldn't have enough expertise to cheat if they wanted to.

Open

In the end, Dan's Papers carried the day. The final score was Dan's Papers 897, Poxabogue Golf Course, 555. Another way of figuring this was on a strokes-per-golfer basis and when figured this way, Dan's Papers also won, the average per golfer being Dan's Papers 49.8, Poxabogue Golf Course 42.8.This was a good thing because it meant it was unnecessary to take an axe to the trophy, something which the judges decided would have to be done if one team won by total score and the other team won score-per-golfer.

Shinnecock Nation Holds Press Conference In Wainscott To Stop Land Development

By Chris Stanley

On August 16, the Shinnecock Nation Land Defense Committee joined forces with the Pow Wow Committee to present an awareness event and press conference at LTV in Wainscott.

The theme of the event was "NOT ONE MORE ACRE," at a time of year when nature speaks in its most powerful voice through thunder and lightning.

"Thunder is the voice of the living creatures on the land. In August we hear the voice of the thunderbird and the lightning. We credit that to a great bird," Elizabeth "Chee Chee" Haile told me in a recent interview. "We chose to bring the voice of the animals to public awareness."

For several months now the Shinnecock Nation Land Defense Committee, has been holding events to make the public aware of the need for the preservation of the land at a time when outside developers race to urbanize the Hamptons.

Traffic on even the back roads has come to resemble New York City rush hour, as the work force must commute from Riverhead and beyond.

Countless acres of open space and farmland have been sited for the building of mega malls, super duper supermarkets, gigantic recreation centers, and billion dollar estates.

Local planning boards have decided to aid the developers amidst rising protests from year 'round locals who are being priced out of the area by housing costs.

Traffic on even the back roads has come to resemble New York City rush hour, as the work force must commute from Riverhead and beyond.

Those long-term residents that can afford to continue living in the Hamptons are seeing the nature around them being denuded. Everything that had once made the Hamptons "the Hamptons" is being indiscriminately plowed under by bulldozers with the stamp of approval of town and village officials.

History tells us that the Indian nations that have seen this process for over 400 years and have made numerous attempts to protect the land through the legal system, have been repeatedly shot down in manipulated court rooms.

Through the years, so much that had once been clean water, clean air, and nature's haven for all living things, was sacrificed for industrialization and urbanization.

Because of their unusual beauty and proximity to New York City, the Hamptons had been spared until now.

What will the playground of the wealthy be like when there is no one to service them? Will the Hamptons be reduced to ghost towns when all the wealthy leave for other playgrounds when the season is over?

"My landlord just raised our rent another $500 in our year 'round rental. My husband and I are both working several jobs just to meet the rent," a woman who asked not to be identified said. "We worry what will happen to us when winter comes and we won't be able to buy oil for heat."

"I was in a winter rental and had to leave when the summer season began," a local carpenter told me. "In the past I had been able to negotiate an affordable rent with my landlord, but this summer he just wanted me out. The figure he quoted was beyond my reach. I'm living in a tent in a friend's backyard."

Unlike other Americans, the first Americans take a far-reaching view of the consequences to the next seven generations before taking any meaningful actions. It is for this reason that the Shinnecock Nation Land Defense Committee has been taking a leadership role in the preservation of the land.

Since their five-day protest over the takeover of their sacred burial grounds by developer Parrish Pond Associates this past winter, the Committee has spearheaded a movement in defense of the land.

Derek Whirlwind Diskin, North East Regional Council Chair for AIM (American Indian Movement), coordinated an "Awareness Rally" in Albany.

An Awareness Press Conference was held at Southampton College.

Ruben Bess Valdez organized an hour-long "Awareness Tour" of the land in and around Southampton, Hampton Bays and Flanders that is slated for development.

An awareness "March For Mother Nature" in the Village of Southampton followed soon after.

A fundraiser for the legal defense of Prof. Bob Zellner, Chairman of the Anti-Bias Task Force, was held in Water Mill. According to hospital records, Prof. Zellner had been brutally injured when he was arrested by State Troopers during a peaceful demonstration. He has filed a Civil Rights case against the State of New York.

Ruben Bess Valdez appeared on the Lois Wright show at LTV recently.

And now, "August Thunder" has been taped at LTV for future viewing. The event featured full ceremonial regalia, with ceremonial drum beating by four members of the Young Blood group, chanting and ceremonial dances beginning with "Traditional Women," followed by "Eastern Blanket Dance," coordinated by Aiyana Smith, the "Jingle Dress Dances," "Sampwe's Fancy Dance" and the "Shawl Dance." Historic presentations by both Lance Gumbs, Pow Wow Co-Chairman, and Elizabeth "Chee Chee" Haile, daughter of Chief Thunder Bird, who had been the Co-founder Chairman and Ceremonial Chief of the Pow Wow, which has been in existence since 1946. Incidentally, the Shinnecock tribe is the oldest tribe to be still living on its original land and members of the Pow Wow Press Conference span five generations.

A portrait of Chief Thunder Bird by Lakota artist Chris Liles was on display during Chee Chee Thunder Bird's presentation.

The "Thunder Bird Sisters" and their brother Ben, who is a graduate of Oneonta University and accompanies the vocal group on drum, base guitar, mandolin, saxophone and piano, have been nominated for three major categories of the Native American Music Awards (NAMA), which will be held in Albuquerque, New Mexico in November.

Event Co-coordinator, Rebecca G. Genia is the lead singer and is assisted by Tina Tarrant and the Reverend Holly Haile Davis, who was appointed Temporary Supply Pastor at the Whaler's Presbyterian Church in Sag Harbor by the late Christine Grimbol.

"The drum is central to traditional prayer life," Chee Chee Thunder Bird told me. "It represents the heartbeat of the people. It's the first sound we hear when we are closest to our mother—before and after birth."

Addressing the issue of the 62.38 acres of sacred burial grounds that are being developed by developer Parrish Pond Associates, Lance Gumbs said: "Our sacred lands throughout the Shinnecock Hills have not been built on in 100 years, and now suddenly developers are going to put 38 homes on our traditional land. They hire their own archeologists that say whatever they want them to say."

This parcel of land had been marked for open space preservation due to its "archeological sensitivity and rare Maritime Heath grass."

The Pow Wow will be taking place on the Reservation on Labor Day Weekend, with a welcoming ceremony on Friday evening. Proceeds will fund special programs on the Reservation. For more information please call: 631/287-3200. ●

On The Shoulder

Woman Stands Vigil Day After Day By The Side Of The Road In A Small East End Town

By Ben Amato

John Maurice was exhausted. His father had just survived hours of open heart surgery and the ride back and forth from Saint Francis Hospital was a long but happy one. Going south on the parkway, down the road from home, his life ended. The huge grill of the '88 Buick smashed into the left side of his Caviler, sending it off the road and into a utility pole. "We hoped he died instantly," said his sister Deborah.

Deborah Ferguson is a nurse, working a late shift. "The night before I had just gone back to work. I was out for three days with my father's heart surgery. My supervisor just reprimanded me the night before for taking the time off. At about 10:30 p.m., I got the call from my sister Lori. She said that Daddy's fine, but John didn't make it. I raced home and saw the intersection. Police, flashing lights, the road blocked off. I knew it was the accident."

"I'm not one for cemeteries, but for some reason I feel closer to John at that pole. I place flowers there regularly. There's a connection with that spot, maybe because that's the last place that John was alive. Roadside memorial. I saw this somewhere, Happiness broadens your heart. Sorrow opens your soul." And for Deborah, it also opened her eyes.

Standing at the utility pole, she noticed the four lane parkway; the speeding, the traffic, the thousands of cars which fly by hourly. William Floyd Parkway is the main artery for the growing communities of Shirley and Mastic Beach. It ends at Smith Point County Park, where the Flight 800 memorial is being constructed. This divided highway has undergone tremendous change in the last few years, with traffic lights and turning lanes dotting every intersection, except the one where John died.

...the grim reapers stand silently, letting their visual message remind drivers that a life was lost at that spot....

On this portion of the busiest road in Shirley, the medians have been changed, effectively closing off local cross streets, so no one can try to zoom across the four lanes of constant traffic. But on that night in January, 18 year old Sharon Downing approached westbound on Stuart Road, the only road left that crosses the parkway without the safety of a traffic light. She said she slipped through the northbound traffic, stopped at the median, saw one car passing southbound and then went to drive across. It was then she hit John, ending his life and changing the lives of those who loved him.

"You have no idea what goes on there," Debbie said, "it's dangerous." That's why she and dozens of her family, friends and neighbors are working to close this intersection down. "We don't want anyone else to go through this. There's no reason for it."

Since 1995, there have been 18 accidents at this intersection, the last one knocking down the county sign that was put up memorializing John's death. Under pressure from local politicians, petitions and community groups, the honorable Charles J. Bartha, P.E., Suffolk County Commissioner of Public Works, leaped into action and ordered his men to paint dotted yellow lines at the intersection. This is the official way to get cars to stop before they try to cross. The last two accidents sprayed blood and glass on these new yellow lines.

So everyday this summer, the grim reapers are out there, standing on the highway's shoulder, holding a sign with a simple message. "Dangerous Intersection Ahead." For a few hours Deborah is behind the mask, draped in a veil. Other times it's John's ex-wife Donna. John's father daily parks his pickup, with an empty casket in the rear, on the side of the road. His sign asks the question,

"Isn't a Light Worth A Life."

"We're not going away," said Donna.

"This is impacting people. There's been tremendous support from the people. Grown men have stopped and hugged my father. Everyone has a story of people who have died (in auto accidents). The police are very supportive. Just by standing there, we're doing something. They're slowing down... they got the point."

But those in authority have not. The letter writing, phone calls, meetings with officials have brought nothing but yellow paint and red tape. They say traffic studies are needed and cost thousands of dollars. Deborah did her own, collecting official documentation from the NY State Dept. of Motor Vehicles. She has enough information to make her point, the intersection is dangerous. People get hurt. People die.

She also has discovered other truths. "Once you get everything in writing, they (the elected officials) don't follow or even remember what they say." She's contacted country legislators, town officials and county agencies. She actually believes that "whether you're a Democrat or a Republican, when it comes down to the people's needs, you have to work together." No one in authority seems to be doing that.

So the grim reapers stand silently, letting their visual message remind drivers that a life was lost at that spot in the road.

"This is my way of grieving." Deborah said, wiping away tears. "From John's daughter Courtney, I found out that his favorite song was "Somewhere over the Rainbow." As a nurse I have noticed that when you have a heightened awareness of something, you tend to see more of it. We're starting to see rainbows. I choose to believe that John is sending us messages. My brother's happy with what we're doing. He's encouraging it."

Daily on the shoulder of this parkway, this roadside memorial is now a community effort to save lives. Is a life worth a light? Not according to those who make the decisions. But to these silent grim reapers, the cost of this intersection is already too terribly high. ●

"WHY WOULD SOMEONE WHO HAS ANOTHER ALARM COMPANY, CALL SCAN SECURITY?"

All security companies are not equal. For instance if you call our competitors, they have a machine answering your emergency call. Scan's phones are answered 24 hours a day by a person who can immediately and effectively respond to a break-in, fire or freezing pipes. Another reason Scan is better is that unlike our competition, who have one car on patrol, we have five. So when choosing a security company, don't settle for less. Call Scan Security at 537-7600 and speak to a person, not a machine.

David Yurman

Jeweler

By Dan Rattiner

I am sitting with David Yurman and his wife around the kitchen table in their home in East Hampton and we are discussing the fact that this is their twentieth year in the jewelry business.

"It's also our seventeenth year in the Hamptons." David said. "We rented for awhile in Springs and Amagansett just to be away from the city. One year we went to Martha's Vineyard. The country is a great place to just hang out and draw and design. Sybil would paint, I'd have our Manhattan model maker come out. It's amazing what you can do with a Dremel and some hard wax, creating jewelry designs. And then we bought this house six years ago.

David Yurman was born in Manhattan, the son of a man in the garment industry who dealt in accessories, belts and trimmings. At an early age they moved to the Bronx, then at ten, the family moved to Great Neck where David went to high school at Great Neck South.

"I was not a terrific student." David said. "I found social studies particularly boring, but what I was interested in was being on the track team. I ran the half mile and the mile and was second in the state meet. My best time for the mile was four minutes and fifteen seconds which I once did on a relay and I've done half a mile in under two minutes."

"Those are very good times." I said.

"Well, in the summer when I was seventeen, I went to Eugene, Oregon to work in a lumber mill and trained with Bill Bauman, a man who had trained a four minute miler. Another summer I went to visit my sister in Provincetown. She'd gone there to meet the beatniks and was living with a Cuban sculptor named Ernesto Gonzales and I stayed with them and Ernesto taught me how to weld. I took a torch home and made metal sculptures. I thought this was terrific."

David's parents didn't think this particularly terrific however. They didn't think there was a future in it. David would be down the finished basement with his torch and one day the burlap curtains in the basement caught fire and they had to bring down the fire extinguishers and put everything out.

"You'd have thought that would have put an end to my sculpture career," David said. "But my dad made me an offer. He said if I could weld a hand then it would prove I was serious, because the level of complexity was difficult. If I couldn't weld a hand, I'd have to sell the torch and cut off my long hair. In any case, I'd have to move out of the basement. I could use the garage."

Two days later Yurman was out in the garage; the garage door was open because of the heat inside and a man appeared.

"He was from the Lighthouse." Yurman said. "And he wanted to know if I would help the blind. He gave me a card and the card had all these hand figures, each hand in the shape of a letter of the alphabet. This was amazing. I thought I would sculpt the alphabet and sell each letter in the cafeteria and make some money. The kids would buy their initials. And they did."

Yurman was welding with 25 meter flex coated Union Carbide rods which Ernesto had used in Provincetown.

"I kept in touch with Ernesto." Yurman said. "I told him over the phone that the rods smelled terrible. He told me how to put fragrance in. Then he called and told me he had been phoned by Fidel, and Fidel wanted him to return to Cuba and become the Minister of Art. This was in 1960. He said, 'This is b.s. This was supposed to be about socialism, not the Russians.' But his leader called and he went."

Yurman enrolled at NYU downtown commuting from home in Great Neck. He saw students carrying gym bags, and people told him they were some of the school athletes and they had scholarships. Yurman wanted a scholarship.

"Where are you going?" he asked one of them.

"Uptown to the Bronx to run," he was told. "They have a wood track up there."

"In the Village all they had was archery or bowling, so I got my own gym bag and went to NYU uptown and I'd run and work out and I got my scholarship and some nights I'd sleep in the boiler room of the gym on a cot because it was too far to go home. The track team was really good in those days. Joe Healey and two or three other guys on it wound up going to the Olympics. I was preparing to run in the Millrose Games, I was pretty good as I said, but then I hurt the cartilage in my left knee running on the wooden boards and I had to miss it."

After one year Yurman dropped out of college. It was 1960. He had read On The Road by Jack Kerouac and he went on the road himself and wound up in Venice, California working at the Venice West Café for Big Daddy Nord.

"I washed dishes, made spaghetti, cappuccino, I got an apartment in Venice Beach right on Wavecrest Drive which was known as the place of four P's and an M; pimps, perverts, poets, prostitutes, and muscle builders."

Yurman went to Santa Monica Junior College for a little while, then dropped out of there and then taking his motorcycle north, drove to Big Sur.

"It's a beautiful drive and I remember the trip." he said. "I went with a girl named Pam. She was being real nice to me but what she really wanted was a ride. On the way I got a ticket for having too loud a muffler, so I had to go back and go to court the next day. I strapped on an empty can of Campbell's soup with some Brillo in it and the exhaust pipe was fine. The judge let me off. By midnight, that night, I was back in Big Sur, frozen, it was about 45 degrees, where I went to a place called Lime Kiln Creek, which was run by a guy named Pat Cassidy. I worked as a handy-man for Richard Bratigan who wrote The Confederate General in Big Sur and I lived with him, his mistress, his twelve year old daughter and his donkey. I fished in the river, dug up and sold ferns in Monterey, had a wonderful time."

Yurman enrolled at Emerson College at Pacific Grove which he found very disorganized. People could come and go, you could take any class. He was not only studying, but teaching his specialty, welding. Not long afterward the college closed. He also worked as a handyman, baby sitter, and car repairman for Dennis Murphy, another Big Sur resident.

"I was having the best time," he said. "I was totally footloose."

Then his older sister got married in New York and he had to come back for the wedding. He went back and forth and back and forth between California and New York eleven times, accomplishing it by getting himself hired to drive private automobiles cross country.

In 1968, deciding to settle in New York, he bought a used 1963 Volvo P18. Another car plowed into him from behind, and though he wasn't severely injured, it gave him a back injury that has aggravated him from time to time since.

In Manhattan he went to study at the Art Students League and took a job as an assistant for Joel Lipshitz doing small castings at Liptshitz' foundry at Hastings on the Hudson. He took an apartment on Bedford Street in the Village. Then he got a job working in the studio of the sculptor Hans Bondevandekampf. Bondevandekampf had done a water and fire sculpture for Peachtree Plaza in Atlanta and did big, beautiful sculptures, some of them decorative.

"He had a whole group of sculptors working for him," Yurman said. "We'd prepared proposals, make decorative fountains, and there's where I met Sybil."

Sybil had come to the studio to answer an ad put in by Bondevandekampf for help doing written proposals for new clients.

"We're standing on ladders, welding." Yurman said. "And she came in and I liked her instantly. I watched her walking by, Afro black hair, Tibetan bells, black boots with red laces, a Peruvian Serape thing, I think she had two of them on."

"Three," Sybil said. .

"She was this big Alpaca person with wild hair and she was taking very large steps."

Sybil was hired and for three months David bided his time.

"I'd make sandwiches." Sybil said. "And then we started dating."

Love bloomed. One year later they moved to a five bedroom pre-war apartment at 99th Street and Riverside with two living rooms and a maids room off the kitchen as a studio.

"One day we were walking on Madison Avenue," Yurman said, "looking at the galleries. We went to a show of Gregory Gilespie's work at Bella Fishco's Forum Gallery."

Bella looked at this piece of jewelry that Sybil was wearing, and asked who made it?

"David made it," Sybil told Bella.

"Well, I could sell this," Bella said. "Can you make more?"

David said no. Sybil said yes. She told David what she could sell them for, David was impressed and made four of them.

"I sold them all. Can you make more of them?" Bella asked the following week.

"No," David said.

"Yes," Sybil said.

Back at the apartment David started making more jewelry.

"I'd work for two days and Sybil would worked a full time job and then come home and help me with them. Sybil said, 'you have to cast them. I never see you.'"

And so they borrowed $500 and went to the Rheinbeck Craft Fair in Rheinbeck, New York and to many galleries selling not only some of the jewelry but also decorative belt buckles which were very popular at the time.

"We went to Provincetown." David said. "Cape Cod was great for belt buckles."

The Yurman's opened a shop in Putnam County. The work would be made and polished there and then cast in Rhode Island. It was called The Putnam Art Works and David designed their first business card, which was a cow under a palm tree.

"I thought it would help us get loans from local banks up there, somehow," Yurman said.

Pretty soon they had fifteen people working at The Putnam Art Works which David described as kind of a camp for jewelers. People would bring their dogs, and he remembered one day there were twelve dogs there. They'd work and then take a break and go swimming.

For three years the Yurmans lived full time in Putnam County, but in the end they decided to move back to New York. It was too difficult a time for Sybil, who was painting and needed to be near the galleries. They got a loft in Tribeca (where they are now). It was 1975 and David began to concentrate on jewelry, which after all these years, was beginning to sell very well.

"We began to sell mainstream," he said. "To Henri Bendel, Saks, lots of independent jewelers."

Yurman began to win all sorts of awards for it. And it was in 1983 that he began to make jewelry out of twisted cable.

"At first it was unsuccessful," David said. "Cartier wouldn't buy it, people would think it too unusual they said."

But the business was taking off and it was getting out of hand. David and Sybil decided to take a two week vacation and make a decision about what they were going to do. When they came back they had decided that they would be known for one thing, and it would be cable jewelry. And they would target Neiman Marcus.

"Neiman Marcus took us on in 1985." Yurman said. "They took us to the party and we're the ones who've taken it home."

The cable jewelry is classic, beautifully proportioned, wonderfully shaped and balanced, and very elegant. The cables are made of hollow 18kt gold strands, so it is not heavy but very strong and flexible and looks bigger than it is. It's fabulously designed.

At the present time David Yurman jewelry is located around the country, in very select stores.

"We add about three or four stores a year. We're looking for the right homes for these pieces." We ask, do you have enough space? What is the store philosophy? When we take a store on, we add it to our authorized retail network."

In the Hamptons, Yurmans work with London Jewelers.

"We've known the Udells who own London Jewelers for a long time. Our children play together. We're like a loosely knit family."

The Yurmans – they have a son, 17 – like to ride horseback. They stable a horse in Pantigo with Bill Deutch and for a long time David Yurman has offered a major prize at the Hampton Classic Horse Show to raise money for young riders and also for Southampton Hospital. Five years ago he also established the David Yurman Humanitarian Award, something that was suggested to him by Steve Florio, the publisher of Gentlemen Quarterly Magazine.

"The first one was held five years ago at a theatre in Manhattan and we awarded it to Steven Speilberg. We honor people who give of their time to the community."

Today, David Yurman makes personal appearances at between twenty-five and fifty events. They are held in stores. A percentage of the tickets, the proceeds for the week, and a minimum cash donation of five to ten thousand dollars is made by Yurman to benefit charity.

What the Yurmans really like however, is to be home in the Hamptons. David and Sybil listen to music, swim and do gardening and enjoy a wonderful life they've created. ●

Who's Here:

Audrey Flack

Artist

By Joan Zandell

On this sunny Sunday morning at the end of August, Audrey Flack's studio in East Hampton is a sacred space filled with Goddesses and light. Audrey was my instructor for figure drawing my first year in college. I remember drawing skeletons and bones and skulls for quite some time before muscles and flesh and movement ever entered the picture, so to speak. Audrey works that way, from the inside out, from the bottom up, there are a million cliches I could bore you with, but I will quit while I am ahead. I think you get the gist of what it is I want to say. We met again, after many years, when she appeared on my lawn one early October morning scouring my yard sale, not an unusual pastime for her I've discovered, for possible inspiration.

Audrey Flack was born in New York City. She knew from the age of three that she was an artist, and she has never understood nor had the patience for people who didn't know who they were or what they wanted. She graduated from Cooper Union, and received her BFA from Yale University. Throughout the '60's and '70's she taught at Pratt Institute, New York University, and The School of Visual Arts in New York City. She began participating in group exhibitions prior to graduating college, and had her first solo exhibition in1959 at the Roko Gallery in New York. By 1974, she began showing with the prestigious Louis K. Meisel Gallery.

Audrey Flack began as an Abstract Expressionist, but quickly developed a style called Photo-Realism that would catapult her onto America's art scene and into the public eye. She was the first Photo-Realist to have a work of art purchased for the permanent collection of the Museum of Modern Art, and is the only Photo-Realist to be included in the collections of New York's four major museums. She also happens to be one of America's foremost women artists. Known for her content and technique, Flack began "drawing with the camera" in 1972, influencing future generations of artists like Cindy Sherman.

"I always wanted to draw realistically. For me art is a continuous discovery into reality, an exploration of visual data, which has been going on for centuries, each artist contributing to the next generation's advancement. I wanted to go a step further and extend the boundaries. I also believe people have a deep need to understand their world and that art clarifies reality for them." Audrey Flack from an interview with Cindy Nemser, Art Talk, Charles Scribner's Sons, New York, 1974.

In her book, Audrey Flack on Painting, written in 1985 she writes, "Art is a powerful force in the world. It is the visual representation of what we think, what we feel, how we think, how we feel. Art makes life more livable, more beautiful, more comprehensible. It helps us deal with the basic fact of our physical mortality. Someday people will live for hundreds of years, and will look back on our society with wonder at the basic tragedy of an all too brief existence. At that time, the nature of art will change. From ancient times until now, and up until that future time, art has dealt with and will continue to deal with all that is perishable in the world, and attempt to reach a higher reality to fill the soul, to excite the mind, to go beyond. Its message cuts through time and space and lasts for centuries. Art is a protest against death.... Art reflects, documents, comments upon, or commemorates the time in which we live. We live in a society, which is decaying and polluting itself. We face universal destruction emotionally and physically. It seems to me at this time of betrayal of hopes, a victory for art matters desperately."

Today, Flack believes that we are living in a world dazzled by celebrity rather than impressed by substance. She believes that what holds true in the political arena holds doubly true in the art arena. She speculates, perhaps artists should not sign their work? Perhaps we should never see Gore or Bush, but simply read the positions they take on the issues. Her point of view brings to mind the Kennedy/Nixon television debate, in which Kennedy wore make-up while Nixon did not. For the people who watched the debate on television, Nixon whose beard was not covered by make-up was perceived as "shady." For those who listened to the same debate over the radio, they felt that Nixon was the stronger and smarter candidate. It would seem that America has been struggling with substance vs. celebrity for some time and continues to do so.

Says Flack, "If only we could reduce these two men to their essence, and then project that essence out into the world without fanfare."

She believes the same holds true for art. "We must come to the essence of the water, and the trees and what art is. Art is not fundraising; art is not the glamour of the artist appearing at the latest restaurant. If you take all that away, perhaps then you can get back to the essence?"

In the year 2000, is art definable? "I think that everybody is creative. In ancient times our creativity was our gift. We made our own clothes, we made vegetable dyes to dye the fabric, and we'd cut lines into the loin clothes, and we'd attach fringes and beads, and scarify and paint our bodies and make baskets and I think that's great! Everything is a part of creativity. Craft is part of creativity.

We go to Museums for different reasons. If we go to see art by a tremendous artist, that artist has the ability to put together a great amount of complex information into a format that vibrates and harmonizes in such a way that the work of art gives off a life energy. That's what I think art is. I don't think that just anyone can do this. Nor do I think that everybody should try."

Is the ability to create art a gift? Flack thinks a moment and responds, "I think it is a combination of a gift and hard work. And a society that recognizes this combination. There is something in the molecular structure of a work of art - the brain is able to transmit energy through the hand onto the canvas or into the sculpture. That transference of energy through the molecules or the energy through the paint or the clay is in such constant motion and is vibrating at such a high frequency that it is projected into the world for generations to come. Entertainment is entertainment, and great art is great art, and the two are not to be confused. Sexual confusion is sexual confusion, and not necessarily great art. Although, you can be a great artist and be sexually confused!"

Several years ago Audrey Flack's life was touched by controversy. She was commissioned to create a sculpture for a public space in New York City, on the shores of the East River opposite the U.N. The sculpture is of the 16th Century Portuguese Princess Catherine, who married King Charles II. King's County is named after him and Queens is named after her, just as New York is named after the Duke of York, cousin to the King. All seemed to be going along swimmingly when the foundry destroyed the mold of the face of Queen Catherine, damaging irrevocably the original creation. The face would have to be redone.

All work ceased. And the question that was raised was, "Does the foundry have the right to destroy, mutilate or change the original creation?" At the present time, the sculpture of Queen Catherine lies on the floor of the foundry, in sixty separate pieces, untouched and unprotected while its future is decided in Federal Court.

I ask Audrey Flack what; if anything can she tell us about Catherine? She collects herself, takes a breath and responds, "I love that sculpture. And I think I invested it with everything that I could. After a lecture where I showed photographs of the sculpture, I received a note from a nun, who had been present, the note read, "Do you know what you've done? You've created the image of the mother of God.'

I think what I did was that I created a universal face. And that was hard. I think it speaks to Caucasian people, Black people, Asian people, it breaks away from the Greco Roman ideal of beauty. The art world has never seen that. I have seen it. I live in New York where every sort of nationality lives side by side. I was able to get into that face."

One of Audrey Flack's many accomplishments is her vast knowledge of art. When she chooses to break a rule, it is rarely just a well-timed accident. To look around her perfectly lit studio on this Sunday morning at the end of August one can see that nothing has been placed by accident. Everything has been thought out and thought through,

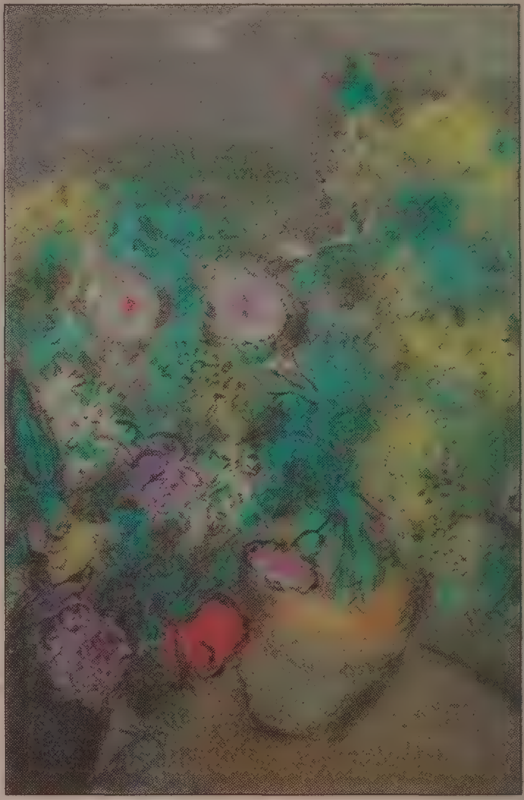
Painter, Lovers and Three Bouquets

"Painter, Lovers and Three Bouquets" – is an oil on canvas, 36x25, signed on the lower right by Chagall; signed on the verso, MarcChagall and a Certificate of Authentication accompanies this work. Provenance: From the estate of the artist's private collection. The classic blue of Chagall, a painting of lovers, flowers and the painter himself, an expressive masterpiece – this price seems conservative, bordering on 1,000,000 at The Vered Gallery, East Hampton.

The Silver Fund

Can your table afford a service for twelve or a rare centerpiece by Georg Jensen? A very last minute addition from London to next week's "Original Hamptons 34th Annual Summer Antique Festival and Sale" on August 24 through August 27, at the Bridgehampton Community House, Montauk Highway at School Street attracted exhibitor Michael James, a silver specialist who helped found The Silver Fund. The Silver Fund is not only the largest dealer worldwide in old Georg Jensen silver, but has a huge American clientele (including twelve billionaires just in New York_ who covet the rare and museum-caliber Georg Jensen designs they acquire from around the world.

Today, you can acquire any of Jensen's original thirty-three patterns from Internet merchants and estate dealers who offer a wide array of Jensen pieces, including many long produced by the Danish maker. Prices for Georg Jensen sterling range from as little as $60 per piece for flatware to $3,000 for serving pieces, and as much as $20,000 to $200,000 for full coffee services and rare centerpieces.



Mimosa et Oeilles Roses

Mimosa et Oeilles Roses – is Gouache on paper laid on board, 1949, 25.59x19.69 inches. Signed lower right, Marc Chagall. A Certificate of Authentication accompanies this work. review: linda eder

By Jan Silver

There was a big crowd outside Guild Hall at 6:30 p.m. on Saturday, August 19. This signalled my introduction to the cult of Linda Eder. The recording artist and her band arrived in East Hampton for the final "Cabaret-by-the-Sea" summer concert.

Linda Eder is a tall, attractive brunette from America's heartland (Minnesota). By her own onstage admission, she's been singing almost all her life but is shy about singing to small groups. That may be because she is a belter and can really shake the timbers of any hall.

A twelve-time winner of the defunct television talent show Star Search, she eventually headed to New York as a lead in the Broadway musical Jekyll & Hyde. She also met and married the musical's composer, Frank Wildhorn.

Ms. Eder's voice fits her husband's music. It is strong and can range from a whisper to a wail. During her 90-minute program at Guild Hall, she did a medley of Broadway ballads written for men but very suited to her voice—"If I Were A Rich Man," "Maria," "What Kind of Fool Am I?" and "Man of La Mancha."

She acknowledged being accused of singing like two of her idols, Barbra Streisand and Judy Garland, and then sang a few tunes they made famous. Her version of "Over the Rainbow" is quite beautiful. Other selections from her program I enjoyed were: "On the Street Where You Live" from My Fair Lady and the pulsing rock beat given "Something To Believe In."

Her seven-piece band, led by musical director Jeremy Roberts, are all accomplished musicians. Each had a brief solo turn and together played a song from Wildhorn's musical in development, Havana, with Ms. Eder on vocals. Toward the close of the concert, she sang the Wildhorn/Benson paean to past love that her followers adore, "Vienna." It is on her latest CD, It's No Secret Anymore (Atlantic). ● review: you can't take it with you

By Jan Silver

Why is Bay Street Theatre bothering to revive the 1936 Moss Hart/George F. Kaufman comedy You Can't Take It With You? Short answer: because it is a very funny and well-crafted play that is just as meaningful for today's financially-flush times as for the post-Depression years. No matter how much money or status or lack thereof one possesses in this life, "you can't take it with you" into the next life, so enjoy life while you're here.

How do Hart and Kaufman illustrate their theme? With a most loving and eccentric extended family, the Vanderhof/Sycamore clan. For starters, there's Mrs. Penny Sycamore (Penny Fuller), who used to be a painter until a typewriter was delivered to her home, by mistake, eight years ago. Now she writes plays. Her husband, Paul Sycamore (Peter Maloney), builds fireworks in the basement with their permanent guest, Mr. De Pinna (John Fiedler), the ice delivery man who stopped by eight years earlier and never left (a nicer guest than Hart and Kaufman's The Man Who Came To Dinner).

Then there's Essie (Shelley Delaney), the Sycamore's married daughter who makes candy and is desparately trying to be a ballerina. And Ed Carmichael (Roger Bart), her husband, who also stopped briefly at the Vanderhof/Sycamore home and never left. He likes to print flyers and play the xylophone.

The rest of the extended household includes housekeeper Rheba (Roz Ryan) and her boyfriend Donald (Bryan Hicks), Essie's Russian émigré ballet teacher Boris Kolenkhov (Jonathan Freeman) and his waitress-friend Grand Duchess Olga (Mary Testa), a boozy actress Gay Wellington (also Mary Testa), and some U.S. government enforcers (Tom Gustin, Robert Meehan, Michael DeSanti).

Are there any "normal" personalities in this play? There's the Sycamore's employed daughter Alice (Jennifer Dundas Lowe)and her fiance Tony Kirby (Talmade Lowe), and Tony's upper-crust parents (Larry Keith and Joan Copeland). But the center of the household and calm center of the play is Grandpa Martin Vanderhof (Mason Adams).

Director Jack Hofsiss has assembled a stellar cast of seventeen veteran actors and transposed them into a harmonious comic ensemble. Each player has a solo melody that, when blended together, makes a wonderful symphony. This could not have been an easy task with such accomplished actors – Grandpa and Ed almost stole the show at the first Friday evening performance – but Mr. Hofsiss keeps the action moving.

The production is greatly enhanced by set designer Michael McGarty's handsome early 20th century oak-paneled parlor and dining area and Ann Hould-Ward's vintage 1920s/1930s costuming. Background music with original artists singing early 20th century popular songs also adds to the mood, as does lighting design by Bevery Emmons and sound by Randall Freed.

As Grandpa Vanderhof says at one point: "Life is kind of beautiful if you just let it come to you." Here. Here. ●

Leif Hope said.

The Writers conceded that on that basis Rosenthal had scored but Lawrence had to be stopped at third. And Strong, instead of an inside the park home run, was entitled to second. And so that's what everyone finally agreed upon, with the help of us umpires. There would be one run in, making it 10-9. Lawrence would be on third, Strong on second, there would be two outs, and the next batter, Director Tom Clohessy, up.

Frankly, I was dazzled at the speed in which this was decided upon, considering the issues were more complicated than those surrounding the Palestinian Question, but there it was, a done deal, in less than a minute. Everyone went back to the sidelines.

Clohessy took one pitch for a ball, swung awkwardly at a bad pitch and fouled it back, and then hit a single between third and short. Lawrence scored, and then Billy Strong, beating the throw to home, raised his arms in victory as he stepped on the plate, and the Artists were leaping around. Artists 11, Writers 10.

As I mentioned, I started out the game umpiring behind the pitcher's mound, something I have done for every game for the past twenty years. Usually, I go an inning or two, then a celebrity or a politician takes over. I've been relieved by the Ambassador to the United Nations Bill Richardson, by Congressman Charles Rangel, by (then) Governor of Arkansas Bill Clinton.

In recent years, the starting pitcher for the Writers has been publisher Mort Zuckerman and for the Artists actor Roy Schieder. For at least the last eight years, they have had an interesting pitcher's rivalry.

This year, however, Roy Scheider was called away to Belgium to star in a film and could not play (even though, as he has told people, The Game is written into his acting contracts), and so, pitching for the Artists was a newcomer, film director Michael Cane. I met him during the warmups. He pitched practice pitches. I stood behind him.

"What do you consider a strike?" he asked.

He threw a pitch.

"That was one," I said. "On the low side, but a strike."

"Okay."

What if peace of mind, a genuine sense of well being and purpose, and a simple delight in every minute of every hour were yours for the asking?

What if emptiness, frustration and isolation were things of the past, replaced by a whole new incentive to get out of bed in the morning? Right now, right here, in the agita capital of the universe.

"Oh, right," did you say? Well it does sound like an overpromise. Then again, just suppose you could have a life where things actually work, instead of a life that seems like work?

A phone call costs maybe a quarter. Checking out www.opencenter.org costs zip. And you wouldn't mind feeling considerably better about life. Would you?

The Sheltered Islander

By Sally Flynn

OBSERVATIONS OF AN ISLANDER #120 HELP SEND THESE KIDS TO DISNEYWORLD!

Or is it, Help! Send These Kids to DisneyWorld! I've said it before, I'll say it again, Shelter Island has a great school. Every year our Eighth Grade class goes to DisneyWorld. To finance the trip, fund-raisers are necessary. Our kick-off event was a combination Car Wash, Bake Sale and Yard Sale at our very active American Legion Hall.

The car wash was a well organized drive through. You pulled up, got out and the handsome Dads league soaped you up and hosed you down, and the car too. Standing by the wayside as my car was being washed, another Mom and I came up with the idea of suggesting a wet briefs contest. But probably the guys would decline, they wouldn't want to overwhelm us...

The Bake Sale was excellent. Treats of all kinds, all calorie free, fat free, salt free, but not free free. I was in the middle of the delicate process of judging through cellophane which was the best brownie on the tray, when I heard the sad news that one of the kids' favorite teachers, Ed McDonald, has retired. Not fair! What's he gonna do now? Relax? Do fun projects at home? Spend quality time with his family? Well what kinda life is that? Teachers need stress and aggravation. They need to cope with behavior problems and collect creative homework excuses for their memoirs. Ed wasn't nearly aggravated enough to qualify for retirement. One more year of the insane "Day One, Day Two" NY mandated school pattern and that would have brought Ed to the required over-the-edge aggravation quota.

The Yard Sale, held indoors on tables, enabled me to spend another $20 for essential non-essentials. My son needed a non-functioning phone, a very old kiddie cash register and moon shoes. My daughter did a nice business at her table. We've moved and culled so many times, I was surprised I had anything decent to donate to the cause. She even managed to sell the Official Shelter Island Earrings.

These earrings have a history. They are the ugliest and most valuable earrings on Shelter Island. Three oversized pearls dangling in a row. Still on the card from the store, because not even the store could sell them. I first saw these earrings last summer at someone's yard sale. I saw a child buy them for his Mom for $1. At first I felt sorry for her. I knew she'd have to act surprised and delighted when she got them. But then I remembered that each December the school asks for donations for things the children can buy for their parents at the School Christmas Fair, I figured she'd donate them to the fair. She did.

On Christmas Day I opened a small box presented by a proud little boy. I acted surprised and delighted as I recognized Shelter Island's ugliest earrings. I left them on the card in their box and resolved to leave them at the Goodies section. I did.

Some months later I was at another yard sale. I gave my son $5 to spend. Lo and behold, he found a pair of earrings for a dollar, just like the ones Mommy lost at Christmas. And so they came back to me. I figure they date back to about 1969 from the styling of them. Since then, they have been sold and resold at multiple yard sales. By now, they have to have earned hundreds of dollars for people on Shelter Island.

When my daughter combed the house for loose possessions to sell, I naturally donated the Official Shelter Island Earrings. I was confident they had been with me long enough, it was someone else's turn to have them.

The pearls were bought by a little girl for a dollar. Somewhere on Shelter Island, a Mom acted surprised and delighted while a little girl beamed. She then left them on the card, in the same box and put them in a corner. They will reappear again, at another yard sale. Or, she can always give them to the school for the Christmas Fair where some child will again purchase them for his or her unsuspecting mother.

I try to rehearse my surprised and delighted look for three minutes every day in front of the mirror, just in case.... •

After letting up a single and getting two outs in the top of the first, however, Cane pitched a meatball to Journalist Lee Minetree, who wacked it over the left field wall — a snow fence — for a home run. Writers 2, Artists 0.

"Do you get many home runs in a game?" Cane asked ruefully as Minetree trotted around the bases.

"Oh, four or five."

In the bottom of the second inning, the artists rallied and scored three runs. There were two out, and with artist Alex Pateco on second, someone hit a sharp single to left off Zuckerman. It would be a close play at home. Catcher Avery Corman stood in front of home plate to take the throw, the ball came in, and as Pateco slid between the catcher's legs, he was tagged on the chest by Corman. Everyone had seen the tag, clearly in front of the plate. Zuckerman, who had run in from the mound, with me close behind, gave a thumbs up to indicate it was the third out, let out a little cheer and trotted off the field. But I had seen it differently.

"Safe," I shouted. I made a sliding motion to indicate Pateco got his feet across the plate before the tag. I had been looking exactly at it.

Zuckerman stopped, shouted "WHAT!" and ran back out onto the field, with some of the writers closely behind. The inning was over! They had trotted in. Now they would have to come back out?

"You ruin the game when you call plays like this!" Zuckerman shouted. "This takes all the fun out of it!"

I have gone up against Zuckerman before. But this statement had me completely tongue tied. Fun? I have never seen anyone take a baseball game so seriously. Zuckerman, who is not only a publisher but a major New York real estate developer, is major league competitive.

I briefly considered reversing my call. But I had no basis to do so. I had seen it. The first base umpire came over and said he had been too far to see it. Leif Hope, in his role as game coordinator, came over, and said he hadn't seen it either. Artist Edmund Hollander said he had seen it from the first base line and I called it correctly. Another man elaine k.g. benson, her daughter's column

Having returned from Los Angeles this past weekend I'm still feeling the excitement of having gone to the Democratic National Convention. I didn't know what to expect. As early as Saturday, the day of our arrival it was clear this wasn't a normal hotel experience. Instead of the other guests looking at their feet or the elevator walls, all the guests were friendly, interested in meeting everyone around them and open to what the week would bring.

Los Angeles is a tough city to get around. The city sprawl makes for long taxi rides and although I've gone to LA many times, I usually get off the plane and head north to Malibu, Topanga Canyon or Santa Monica. I was surprised by the air quality (or lack thereof) and by how the buses work (or don't). Still, nothing could take away the excitement and joy of being in the center of activity at the convention itself.

Monday was the official start of the Convention. Hillary and Bill Clinton each got their time at the podium. I did hear a little negativity about Hillary's speech but I personally couldn't find fault with it. It was amazing to see how charismatic Bill Clinton is. Many people said that if he were running he would win again. Even with his private problems, nothing can change the feeling of prosperity in the country and policy speaks louder than personality.

Tuesday's key speakers were Caroline Kennedy Schlossberg and Edward Kennedy. Caroline spoke with poise and grace. I'm sure she would have preferred to see her brother up on the podium. She rose to the challenge and was good. It's hard to believe how far we've come since her father was elected forty short years ago. It seemed so impossible to have voted in a Catholic. Now, I see many of our NY State elected officials are black or other minorities. It is about diversity and in my opinion it's important.

Joe Lieberman's speech on Wednesday brought tears to my eyes. Anyone who has ever felt loved had to appreciate what he said about family values. To see this son of an immigrant family come so far in one generation made me proud of our system. I'm glad we live in a place where his wife didn't have to change her name to be a politician's wife. I was disturbed to see some of the press react strongly to Joe Lieberman's use of the word God in his speech. I was always taught that this country was settled by people looking for religious freedom. I heard myself singing, God Bless America as the week went on.

Thursday was the day of Al Gore's speech. I was amazed by "the kiss." Everyone was so scared that Al Gore would come off as a little stiff. After that kiss I think he loosened up because everyone seemed to agree it was his best speech ever.

Friday meant catching an early plane home so I could get back to my "real" job and play catch-up. There's no place like home!

in a blue shirt said Pateco was safe. Writer Ken Auletta in a white shirt shouted he was so out it was obvious to everybody. White shirts were saying out. Blue shirts were saying safe. I folded my arms. My decision would stand. And the Writers had to go back out on the field and play the last out.

At the top of the next inning, the third, Leif Hope came over to the pitcher's mound while Michael Cane was warming up to tell me that the Writers wanted me out as balls and strikes umpire. Hope is game manager. He could make this change if he wanted.

"I usually leave by the third inning," I said, "but this is ridiculous. They want me out because they didn't like my call?"

"They're upset," Hope said.

"This is crazy. I'm not leaving like this. I'll umpire another inning," I said. "And then if you want a replacement, okay."

"Okay," Leif said.

I called balls and strikes for the third inning uneventfully. And as the inning ended, and I was handing the ball to an incoming umpire so I could umpire first base, Zuckerman could be heard singing my praises over the loudspeaker behind the batting cage where he had persuaded Jimmy Lipton to let him say a few words.

"...he shouldn't leave his day job to take up a career as an umpire," Zuckerman was saying.

After the game ended, Ken Auletta came over to Jimmy Lipton behind the batting cage to discuss who ought to be the Player of the Game.

"It ought to be someone from the Artists side," he said. "They carried the day."

"How about Miriam Evers?" Lipton suggested. "She came in to pitch for the Artists after Cane tired and she steadied them."

Evers is from Holland. She had never played the game before. Yet she showed courage and grace and brought the Artists back. It was decided to give her the award. She was the first woman selected as Player of the Game in the half century the game has been contested.

After the game, we all repaired to the Laundry Restaurant on Race Lane for some cold beers, a delicious drink offered up by Rums of Puerto Rico, hors d'oeuves and the latest appetizer treat, whole grilled carrot in hot dog roll with cole slaw, courtesy the owner Bill Bombrest.

(I found it, by turns, unusual, interesting, odd and in the end, fraudulent. I wanted a real hot dog. I ate half the carrotdog, threw the other half out.)

Among other things, I learned that the Writers had tried to get rid of Hal Schroer, the umpire who succeeded me calling balls and strikes. It's a tough job being umpire.

I'm told that the BBC and LTV made videotapes of the game. I'd like to see that play at home again. Not the game deciding one in the bottom of the ninth but the play earlier in the game I called. Hmmmm. The Artists won by one run. Maybe that earlier call WAS a game deciding call. And maybe it was wrong. Right or wrong, though, the Game is in the history books. •

review: much ado about nothing

By Ben Amato

Much Ado About Nothing filled the hills of Theodore Roosevelt County Park this weekend and the rousing music, innovative twists and Shakespearean merriment will continue to grace the East End for the next several weeks. Go see it. Director Craig George, musical director David Brandenburg and the rest of the Hamptons Shakespeare Festival have poured new life into this comedy of love, marriage, false accusations and just rewards. Music, costume, set design and World War Two references give this production a unique feel that somehow enhances the beauty of spending a beautiful summer evening on a hillside at Montuak Point.

Renee Howard opens the show with an original ballad David Brandenburg wrote for the production. "Love's to Blame" is crooned out in 1940s style, immediately setting the show right after the war, with a big band sound coming from the eight piece orchestra. An "authentic" sounding radio news bulletin interrupts Reneeís booming voice "The war is over," and from a distant hillside, a parade of soldiers return from battle, flag held high.

By the time they arrive on stage, the scene is set at the governor's mansion, Richmond, Virginia, May, 1945. Opening scene, the cast is introduced; fit young men in military uniforms, voluptuous women in tight dresses, tuxedoed politicians and two bumbling security guards thrown in for comic relief. And on their first word, Shakespeare flows. It is almost a shock to your senses, as your eyes tell you to listen for standard English and, oh my God, you hear thees, thos and lines so clever that you have to "think!"

Fine acting, great visual gesturing and expressions, clever articulations and always with a sense of pride in their craft, the entire cast breezed through the comedy. The most choice roles allowed two performers to shine. J. Richey Nash and Alice M. Vienneau were the proud, quarreling, reluctant lovers. They began the play bitter at their lack of a significant other, sort of "doomed" into maiden and bachelorhood. Throughout the two hour performance, characters Beatrice and Benedick poke fun, pointed witticisms and playful threats at each other, but everyone knows they are meant for each other. By the end of the play, when J. Richey's Benedict shouts, "Peace, I will stop your mouth!" and then embraces and kisses his Beatrice deeply, the audience is finally relieved that these two are paired.

Demosthenes Chrysan plays Leonato, the Governor of Virginia and he postures about the stage, in a too serious, sort of slapstick, but always enjoyable way. No matter the spot lighting, his portion of a scene stands out, for possibly three reasons. His bald head is a beacon among the youthful scalps of the two dozen performers. His smile is infectious and his acting is very emotional and believable. He's happy, overjoyed to see his friends and soldiers return from war. He's thrilled his daughter Hero will marry brave Claudio, a handsome lieutenant. He's crushed by scandal and then triumphant, when villainy is exposed and punished.

Two hours flew by. Laughter turned to tragedy, deception and rumors spread and by end, a marriage was made and hearts united. Much Ado About Nothing should be a part of your East End summer. The sunsets, hills and nighttime sky adds another star to this already star filled production. Contact them at 631-267-0105 for schedules and tickets. •

HEADLINE NEWS

Industrial Park at Old Grumman Site Stalled

Developer Jan Burman, who signed a contract a year ago with Riverhead Town to purchase 492 acres of the former Grumman complex in Claverton, has not yet closed on the deal. Plans to turn the site into an industrial park my be further delayed as Town officials have informed Burman that his plans have not been fully approved.

At any rate, the town has to consider if it will put about 290 acres, currently slated for recreational use, in an industrial zone. But this change might take a good deal of time and further put off finalization of the sale. Supervisor Kozakiewicz and Burman are scheduled to meet in the near future to iron out difficulties surrounding the purchase. There is speculation the developer is trying to stall on the purchase so he can avoid paying the half million or so a year in taxes at the same time he signs on businesses to come to the property.

Riverhead is currently the poorest town on Long Island, with the highest unemployment, but it stands to increase its revenue greatly if a major project or projects can be developed. Currently the town is leasing some of the buildings on the property to various concerns.

Problems with the purchase of the property by Burman include the town's recent rejection of a subdivision plan Burman had submitted.

Flack

from where the brushes stand to where the paper and clay are stored to where her most recent sculpture of Medea is in progress. She asks, "Did you know that Medea really didn't kill her children? They were killed by the Corinthians. Conveniently, they made her responsible when the Patriarchy rewrote the myth." Of course, we remember media for that terrible crime.

How will Audrey Flack be remembered in the annals of art history in this new millennium? That may depend on who is doing the writing and what myths happen to be woven at that particular time. Each era has its historical myth-makers. We can call them critics, or harbingers or do-gooders of good taste.

And not unlike the Medea myth, depending upon the prevailing order and its need for control, each artist will be remembered accordingly. Next to Medea stands another head, another Goddess, her lips are parted, she is about to speak. Her hair is comprised of fruit and flowers, the long tresses that lie across her shoulders are actual tree limbs. She is powerful and beautiful and filled with secrets that she seems impelled to tell. Flack doesn't know where these Goddesses come from. She'd like us to believe that they simply appear, sprung from her consciousness like Athena from the head of Zeus. And perhaps....

I take in these magnificent, strong female sculptures standing in every corner of Flack's studio, I comprehend her definition of art. Her sculptures vibrate, and as you stand there before them you can imagine that four hundred years from now, her paintings and sculpture will still resonate at this frequency brimming with her passionate essence. I cannot imagine that generations to come will not be moved as I am by their beauty, transmuted by her spirit, into technique, content and emotional force – and that the controversy and celebrity surrounding her will be seen as an afterthought. Audrey Flack's work can be seen at the Arlene Bujese Gallery, 66 Newtown Lane, East Hampton until August 24th. •

This annual artists and writers event raises funds for three East End Charities; the East End Hospice, the East End Hampton Day Care Center, and the Retreat (shelter for victims of domestic abuse). It is an afternoon when the boys and girls of summer get into a heated competition on the softball field, to determine who is better, the performers or the pens. This year's event was less of the household name celebrities and more of those whose passion from their art becomes the passion for the game. Hopefully none of the players gave up their day jobs. There was one "Kill the Umpire" incident when after a controversial call, player Ken Auletta was in the face and maybe bumped umpire Dan Rattiner. Auletta was not ejected but lost the argument. Ever see anyone win an argument with Dan?

Watermill Center

There is nothing ordinary about the Watermill Center. Let's start with the invitation .. I saw no directions or address. I guess you should know where it is. When we did find it and parked our car, the attendant put our goody bag in our car for us, in advance. Then after checking in, we walked up a hill, where intern students of the Watermill Center were performing, and I remarked "I have enough trouble interpreting the classics at the Met, so don't ask me." Cocktails, conversation, walking around the Center, and bidding for the silent auction ran longer than expected. And also unexpected, at least to the guests, was the inconspicuous arrival of Richard Gere carrying his baby. Dinner was served in a giant tent but it was not traditional tables and chairs, it was on modular seating. The decor was perfection, but we couldn't be too surprised because it was done by Giorgio Armani. Before the performance by the great Paul Simon, there was a live auction of numerous works of art and a few vacations. This would cause people to be checking out how late it was, but the auctioneer Simon de Pury was pure entertainment. The The Watermill Center, under the leadership and dedication of Robert Wilson, provides young people with unique opportunities for artistic creation. The The event, like the Center, is anything but ordinary.

As the Mercedes Benz Polo season in the Hamptons nears an end, this week's event was the Town and Country Cup. The rains stopped as if on command, and the weather was perfect. One of the sponsors was Burberry and the models wore bathing suits under matching raincoats, looking a little like female flashers. The sponsors' tent became quite busy in spite of other events occurring around the Hamptons at the same time. Next week after the final match, the reins are turned over to the other horsey set, the Hampton Classic.

Bow Wow Luau to Benefit ARF

On Saturday Chuck & Ellen Scarborough hosted an authentic Hawaiian Luau (prepared by Chef Sam Choy) at their home to benefit the Animal Rescue Fund of the Hamptons. There were cocktails, dinner & dancing, and music by Tom Finn. There was a parade of dogs wearing David Yurman collars and leashes, which were later auditioned to the guests. ARF was founded in 1974 as a shelter and adoption service for the dogs and cats of the South Fork of Long Island. A special thanks to Linda Shapiro for her continued support.

Opening Day Festivities Kick off the Country's Equine Extravaganza

Bridgehampton, NY- August 20, 2000 - This year from August 27 through September 3 the Hampton Classic Horse Show will draw nearly 1,500 equestrian competitors from across the country. To celebrate the start of the 25 Annual Hampton Classic, The Manhattan Mortgage Company's Opening Day Ceremonies, presented by Distinction Magazine and Long Island Parents & Children, will offer numerous events to kick-start the show.

The excitement begins on Sunday, August 27 from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. with events featured in six show rings. One of the highlights is the popular and prestigious Hampton Classic leadline division. Held in the Grand Prix Ring, one hundred tiny riders under the age of six will be mounted on their ponies to experience an early taste of showing at the Classic. This year, 1984 Olympic Gold Medalist Joe Fargis again will judge the Classic's youngest riders. Other equestrian events held on Opening Day include short stirrup equitation and local hunter classes. Most classes are restricted to horses stabled on Long Island.

Following the leadline classes, the show's traditional Opening Ceremonies will take place from 1:00pm until 2:30pm. Informational, educational and just plain fun, the Opening Day festivities are a great way to come celebrate the start of the horse show. The Classic Kids junior show committee will come onto the field with herds of llamas and alpacas and the Classic's Executive Director Tony Hitchcock will give a brief welcome address.

"The World of the Horse," an equestrian extravaganza, will include a Parade of Breeds and horse demonstrations. From Millstone Farm's miniature horses to the beautiful Norwegian Fjord and Icelandic horses, the parade will showcase a wide variety of breeds. Enjoy the tremendous diversity of horses in America and learn how, over the years, equines of every breed have played a significant role in our society. There will be an exhibition of Pony Club games as well as a special carriage driving demonstration. The latter will be a preview of the World Singles Driving Championships to be held in Gladstone, New Jersey this October. Back by popular demand will be the Nassau County Mounted Police unit and the Islip Horsemen's Drill Team "The Spirit of Long Island."

The final exhibition in the Opening Day Ceremonies will be the Horses & Hounds of the Smithtown Hunt Club that is celebrating its 50 Anniversary this year. Fox hunting became popular in England in the 1600-1700's, and the traditions of the hunt were brought to North America with the early colonists. Even George Washington enjoyed foxhunting on a regular basis, according to his diary. Today's ingredients for a successful hunt are not very different than they were in the 1700's.

Today's fox hunter, however, is less concerned with killing a fox and more concerned with preserving open space and conservation of wildlife. At the Classic you can see the horses and hounds up close and witness a sport that hasn't changed for hundreds of years.

Be certain to mark August 27 on your calendar because Manhattan Mortgage Company's Opening Day is a fun and exciting start to the best horse show in the country.

Hampton Classic Places Big Bet On The Internet

Long Island's star-bedecked equestrian and social event, the Hampton Classic Horse Show, has placed a major bet that its new Instinet Cyber Café will become the focal point for the promotion of a diverse collection of web-based sponsors. The Hampton Classic is entering its 25 year and is advertising that it is now "25 years new," having just completed a major overhaul of its Bridgehampton show site. "Once we recognized that we were going to be spending more than three-quarters of a million dollars making significant site changes at this year's Classic, we decided to add a fully functional Cyber Café to our newly located Boutiques Garden," noted the show's Executive Director, Tony Hitchcock.

"It appears that our bet has paid off," he added, thanks to pledges of major support from Reuters, the global information and news group, and Instinet, the world's largest agency brokerage and a wholly-owned subsidiary of Reuters Group PLC (Nasdaq: RTRSY) as well as from BestSelections.com, the luxury-shopping site. "The Reuters/Instinet partnership is extraordinarily exciting for us," Hitchcock continued, "and will provide significant added global attention to our event." Thanks to the innovative Instinet Cyber Café there will be numerous interactive opportunities for all spectators and participants.

A new equestrian lifestyle website, EquestrianLife.com has signed on as the Classic's Official Equestrian Website. The site is expected to have its official launch at this year's Hampton Classic Horse Show. "We are thrilled that Sony America has made a major commitment of equipment, including the loan of twelve state-of-the art "Digital Studio" computers to this project," Hitchcock added. Sony is also loaning the Classic several of their high-end television Plasma Screens what will be used in the Instinet Cyber Café and elsewhere on the showgrounds.

One of Classic's "cyber-partners" in the Instinet Cyber Café is i-2000.com, the Classic's Official Internet Service Provider. A specialist in high-speed Internet Services (such as DSL and T-1 data lines), i-2000 (which recently merged with Peconic Online) is working with the Classic to provide enhanced services during the Classic. "Of course, some of our plans are on hold, due to the Verizon (Bell Atlantic) strike," Hitchcock noted. "No matter what, we intend to have a fully functional Instinet Cyber Café," he said, "but we may have to provide reduced and/or somewhat slower service than we originally planned, if the strike is not settled by show time."

According to John Caine, the Classic's Cyber Manager, one of the ways that the Cyber Café will be utilized during the horse show will be to download daily results and winners photos to the Hampton Classic's website www.Hamptonclassic.com. "We hope to be able to download both still photos and video of winning rounds daily," Caine said.

The Instinet Cyber Café will be open daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Boutiques Garden at the Hampton Classic that runs from Sunday, August 27 to Sunday, September 3. For more information, please call the show office at (631) 537-3177 or visit their website at www.hamptonclassic.com.

Healthy Beef – Italian Style

When Harry Armstrong retired as the CEO of an internationally known company, he moved on to fulfill his life's ambition of owning a ranch in Idaho. After some time as a general rancher, he decided that the future lay in the specialized breeding and marketing of Piedmontese cattle. The Piedmontese is among the oldest cattle breeds and originates nowadays from the Piedmont region of northern Italy but it is claimed that the true origins go back some 25,000 years to parts of what today is Pakistan.

According to the Piedmontese Association of the US, these cattle have evolved over the years to produce exceptionally low fat, tender beef when tested against conventional breeds.

Today, Harry Armstrong has two ranches in Idaho and one in Montana and has obtained organic certification from the Organic Crop Improvement Association and his Half Circle Pride beef is sold to over 2,000 customers in that region of the country. When Harry decided that the New York metropolitan area was a natural market for his beef, he enlisted the help of his brother-in-law, Joe Irvine who is a long term resident of Greenport and a CPA by profession. "I agreed with Harry that because so many people living in eastern Long Island really know about good healthy food and are always open to products which represent high quality and value that we should start to market Half Circle Pride beef here in Greenport. We started back in July and we are very pleased with the way business is building up. The good thing is that so many customers keep coming back for more."

At Joe's invitation I tasted some of the steaks which he had simply barbecued on a grill set up at the back of his store and which had no marinades or additions. While he was grilling he repeatedly emphasized to me how important it is for this low fat meat to be treated differently from conventional beef, "You must give the grilling your undivided attention. This meat cooks very quickly, so no sloping off to the fridge for a beer and leaving the steak to spoil!"

Even though the steaks have little fat on them, they are very juicy when cooked and the meat cut well and had the taste that you expect from a steak in a first class steak house and which regrettably you find too rarely in shop bought beef.

During the visit I spoke with one of Joe's customers who was buying steaks for a party. "I was first attracted by the idea that this beef has a guaranteed background history and appears to be much healthier than conventional beef. I originally grew up in the West and I reckon that I know good beef – after all, animals are to a large extent what they eat and these cattle are properly fed so that's why I'm back for more," he explained, with a big smile.

The stocks of Half Circle Pride beef are kept in a freezer storage in Southampton and from there and the Greenport shop all of the standard cuts of steaks and roasts are available either in retail packs or in variety packs of either 15 or 40 lb. of meat. " The combination packs are extremely good value and we offer free delivery to all of the area from Riverhead eastwards on North and South Forks," Joe explained, " Also, we are currently offering a 20% discount on all orders."

At a time when people are increasingly health conscious and also value knowing the way that animals have been bred and raised, Half Circle Pride Organic Piedmontese beef will attract a lot of interest. Joe Irvine summed up his feelings, "I know the full background of every piece of meat that we have delivered to us and I can track back to the actual animal from which it came because the ranch keeps very detailed records. Half Circle Pride beef is delicious and, we believe offers a healthy way to eat beef. Our experience since we opened here is that once people try it they almost always come back for more."

CLASSIC CARS WITH BOB GELBER

MONEY TROUBLE

Last week I heard about a new Porsche prototype that "perhaps" would be offered to the public. My jaw dropped when I saw the proposed asking price of $800,000. What on earth is going on in the world of cars? Has Porsche, which makes the most well engineered sports cars in the world, lost its corporate mind? As much as I love cars, I personally don't think any car built by anyone is worth $800,000. What irks me further is that Porsche is a small, privately owned company that was virtually on the edge of bankruptcy several years ago, for the very simple reason that their product was overpriced. Porsche has always been a pompous company that may be on the verge of repeating a mistake.

Ferrari presently has in production the F-50 which is priced at about $550,000. which I also think is ridiculous, but it is based upon their Formula One racing car, and compared to the Porsche, it's a bargain. Let us also not forget that it carries the Ferrari prancing horse on its sleek snout.

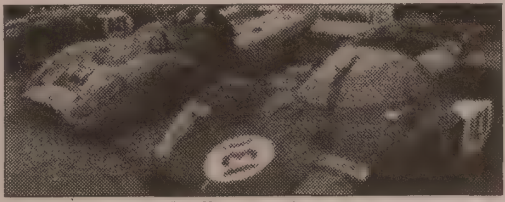
I use these two cars as an extreme example to ask the question, what's going on in the world in regard to the pricing of automobiles? Most cars are simply too expensive.

Last week I was browsing around my local Ford dealer's car lot when I came upon a new Ford Explorer loaded to the gills with leather seats, special paint, powerful V-8 engine and every option except a chopped chicken liver statue of Henry Ford as a hood ornament. The price in the window was $37,000! Holy cow, I thought, is every one who drives a Ford Explorer that wealthy?

That's nothing compared to the big Range Rover, which costs in the 60's, or even the Toyota Land Cruiser, which runs about the same. The only consolation I find in the pricing of these cars is that you're getting a lot of metal for your money.

What's happening, and what bothers me most, is that cars are getting more expensive than what were historically other prized possessions. The above mentioned Porsche and Ferrari cost as much as a home in the Hamptons. For the cost of a new high line four wheel drive car, you can buy a sexy used cabin cruiser or a pretty good used Beechcraft Bonanza airplane.

These sticker shock prices, and in some cases cardiac arrest costs, are reflected in the purchase of even "inexpensive" automobiles. Ford had trouble selling its dramatic new Taurus because it was overpriced (The price was "readjusted"). Mercedes has held the line on its new 300E (or is it E300?) to move them out of the showrooms. Lexus prices keep going up, which I feel will eventually hurt the sales of this car. But then again, like the Germans, when the Japanese get a yen for success, they get fat-headed. Note: Has anyone noticed that the "affordable" Porsche Boxster is creeping up in price "almost daily?



Really expensive cars

When will some of the world's automobile manufacturers realize that price is king? It seems the hottest thing in "retail" is discount malls. My wife is a card carrying discount mall fan. Why did the silly Yugo sell like hot cakes? Wake up guys, and lower your prices.

Maybe I'm sensitive to automobile prices because I've been around cars too long. In 1965 a spanking new Porsche 356 convertible cost $4,200. A Ferrari Lusso or a Rolls Royce Silver Cloud considered expensive at $12,500. (Think about that, less than a Honda Civic today!) Of course I'm aware of inflation but the fact remains that all cars today are terrifically pricey and seem to have "surpassed any rate of inflation.

Why are cars so expensive? Presumably because of several factors, such as government mandated safety and emissions features. I will make one concession to the cost of new cars, and that is that they are really dependable. Today it's quite commonplace for an automobile to run past 100,000 miles without any major mechanical problems. Although I must also give credit to the new automotive lubricating oils that are used in the engines. New cars also handle amazingly well. Again I must give credit to new tire compounds.

Cars today may be costly, but they are dependable. But at what price for technology? I sometimes long for the return of the simple car, like the Volkswagen Bug, or the '55 Chevrolet that had a motor in which you could actually see the spark plugs.

Let's face it, everything today is expensive: homes in the Hamptons, eating out, computers, medical insurance, red peppers and a good cigar.

So what does it all mean? If we use our thirty year scale from the past, cars today are roughly ten times more expensive than they were in 1966. This means that in thirty years a Range Rover will cost $500,000, and even a Ford Escort would sell for $120,000. These facts alone should give you incentive to change your car's engine oil, and keep that baby garaged and waxed. At the rate automobile prices are rising, that Porsche convertible you have in the driveway could someday be worth a king's ransom.

SCENES FROM SPOKES MAN (OBSERVATIONS FROM A TEN SPEED)

OF BUS STOPS AND BRIDGES

Riding from Newtown Lane out of the steamy "shopped-till-you-dropped" town on this muggy August evening, I breathe a sigh as I pass Herrick Park, and the recently completed village-built bus depot station. Hopefully, this extremely well-crafted example of Bonac carpentry skill is a sign of renewed and redirected emphasis on mass transportation issues. From Southampton to Montauk extended bus routes and services would make mass transport more palatable to the general public. Jitney-type vehicles could bring beach goers back and forth to various town beaches, libraries and cultural centers. Townships in some countries provide free bicycles that citizens pick up and leave at designated distribution sites, as they travel from place and place. These bicycles, all identical, stamped with the village seal, are employed on an honor system. I recall at the time of the New York World's Fair when the monorail was introduced to the East Coast. At that time, there was talk of constructing a monorail system down the center divide of the Long Island Expressway. This system would also connect the North and South Shores of Long Island, as well as the major metropolitan airports. Funds must be directed to improve train service to the East End. Unfortunately, transportation policy in this country has been dictated by the automobile and oil industries. Our roads, main streets neighborhoods and ecosystems that have been taken to the limit.

Pondering how this fine cedar bus shelter is the genesis of the national transportation relief, I carefully steer diagonally across the train tracks and head for that S-curve onto Long Lane, the soothing cyclic tonic to a trying day of hawking houses, in what, at times is a shark tank atmosphere of a real estate mart. Cycling past a pre-season football scrimmage at the High School, I head for the pastoral reaches of farm fields and a sun setting, where the "streets have no names," the mind has no limits, and the possibilities are endless. The feeling for me is much like riding past City Hall and the Court Buildings of downtown Manhattan and cycling through the rotary of traffic onto the boardwalk that runs down the middle of the Brooklyn Bridge, taking you to the expansive Promenade of Brooklyn Heights. Paul Goldberger, the truly articulate architectural historian, calls the bridge the "true gateway to Manhattan," although I am still most partial to Mercury hailing atop the revamped, impeccably restored Grand Central Station.

Free from the cares of East Hampton Village life, I turn right on Stephen Hands Path, and hang left onto the Cathedral pines of Bull Path. This very hilly evergreen bordered road is a favorite of mine and provides a good workout in an alternative back road cycle to Sag Harbor. Always keep in mind that if a hill gets too steep, there is no shame in getting off a bicycle and walking a little. The idea of touring is to always provide yourself with an enjoyable outdoor experience. From running with the Bulls, it's a left turn onto Swamp Road with its wildflower reserves and cool, deep forest ranch. Then, pow!, it's a right onto 55 mph on Route 114 with its broad shoulders which you climb steadily into Sag Harbor.

Here I head to an old haunt, Espresso, where owner Luigi serves me an exquisite Espresso combo with everything on it. I wolf it down and chase it with a bottle of San Pellegrino, quite content to be under the ceiling fans and swinging salamis at this off-the-beaten-path Italian specialty emporium. I ride down to the Harbor where huge yachts "with everything on it" (helicopters, jet skis, power boats, cable dishes, etc.) are moored. I sit on a bench overlooking the peaceful harbor and stare out at the cranes standing at attention astride the reconstruction of the Sag Harbor Bridge. I watch the boats leaving the harbor and recall the great Fourth of July weekend I spent cycling over the bridge through North Haven and onto the ferry for Shelter Island. On the "Rock" there was the annual fantastic fireworks display at Crescent Beach. Cycling around Shelter Island is a good way to get away from summer mainland intensities, and enter a simpler plane of small-town America, where people smile and say "hello" to one another as they pass on the street. The mood seems much more congenial, happy and relaxed. This attitude and mind-set could easily be achieved in all East End resort towns if only we keep in mind that we are all unique human beings, each with our own personal stresses and strains. We must reach out to those around us and not be so focused on merely individual, personal needs. It would be refreshing to see more people having real fun. So it's definitely time to get off my soap box, get my duff off this harbor bench, and switch on my Night Rider halogen and flashing red bumper light. I head for home, sailing down the switch backs of Two Holes of Water where I spot a sliver of a crescent moon, God's fingernail, and am grateful for the ride back onto Long Lane and into town. I am thankful I have such a beautiful hometown to return to.

WHEN IN NEW YORK

By Allison Wiley

THE LOWER EAST SIDE REINVENTS ITSELF AGAIN

As new restaurants, bars, shops and galleries begin to emerge in an area traditionally that of Jewish retailers and Hispanic tenements, the Lower East Side is experiencing a renaissance. The Local Business Improvement District estimates that as many as thirty establishments have opened in the past two years.

Not long ago, casual dining on a Lower East Side meant a hot dog on a street corner. Thankfully, there are tons of new eateries, the best of which are listed below, offering everything from sandwiches to tapenades. Casa Mexicana (133 Ludlow Street, 212-473-4100) – The menu offers some excellent dishes such as steak caporal with guacomole and filete chemita. Must try…the salsa. Kilowatt Café (109 Ludlow Street, 212-677-9555) – The menu at this narrow, brick-lined coffee shop sticks to the absolute basics, a few panini, a couple of salads, pastries and espresso. However it is on the bars and boutique trail, and it offers magazines and books to amuse yourself during your shopping breaks. Le Pere Pinard (175 Ludlow Street, 212-777-4917) – The atmosphere is uusally swinging and the service is consistently friendly at this stylish bistro. The kitchen does best with "french comfort items" like brandade de morue. Luisa (129 Riverton Street, 212-475-5447) – The room is packed with a collection of objects, some of which are for sale, and guests are invited to settle into a couch and enjoy whatever food is on the daily special menu. Don't miss the strawberry-banana smoothies. Lunar Blue Café (245 E. Houston Street, 212-674-7788) – Although the décor can be a bit cold, the Billy Holiday soundtrack and the daily soup specials will warm you up. Please note however, that the bar only serves beer and wine. Rivington 99 Café (99 Rivington Street, 212-358-1191) – The staff lets you linger over your coffee, tartines, pastries or sandwiches (try the croque-monsieur) and get caught up on your reading. 71 Clinton Fresh Foods (71 Clinton Street, 212-614-3159) – This small restaurant deserves the hype with its small, focused menu which is both inventive and earnest and its various, unique design elements.

After dining, visit the surrounding pristine galleries which feature the works of artists of the moment and the ultra-hip boutiques that have taken over the once seedy storefronts. Here are a few of the best: Alife (178 Orchard Street, 646-654-0628) – This store is an oasis for show shoppers with some of the funkiest new shoe designers and accessories like sunglasses and handbags and on Sundays, there is even an in-store DJ. Art Friend Foundation (123 Ludlow Street, 212-420-1033) – This cozy shop offers casual displays of homespun threads, drawings and hand-made books. Berlin/147 (147 Essex Street, 212-477-4200) – Amid the shops eccentric merchandise, you'll find stylish vintage leather car coats, Bauhaus furniture, their own clothing line and an artist-in residence program with designers creating and selling their wares. Doyle and Doyle (189 Orchard Street, 212-677-9991) – Fine antique jewelry at bargain-district prices should not be missed by all of you gem junkies. Seven (180 Orchard Street, 646-654-0156) – This store has a copious assortment of local high-end designer talent as well as European designers and an art gallery. 360 Toy Group (239 Eldrige Street, 646-602-0138) – This shop features toys and games with a Japanese flavor as well as action figures. Tink (42 Rivington Street, 212-529-6356) – This shop features the handcrafted works of artisans from South Africa and China. Zoo (175 Orchard Street, 212-505-0500) – This unique shop is also a gallery and a garden spot. Admire the cutting-edge electronics on display in the mezzanine, the artwork of artist WK Interact in the gallery, relax in the garden or shop for hard-to-find treasures by hip, European designers.

The Lower East Side has morphed from a ghetto to ghetto-chic and should be visited for its dining, galleries and of course, its bargains.

Update Your Wardrobe For Fall

As summer turns to fall, people turn to Pendleton for new ways to update their wardrobes. Here's a quick guide to what's new this coming season, as well as some important themes carrying over from spring:

Plaid

Always popular, plaids are hotter than ever this season as they grace everything from skirts and shirts to blazers and handbags. Look to Pendleton for bold colorful patterns as well as neutral, diminutive designs in authentic and exclusive plaids. Check out Pendleton's Classic and Originals collections for a selection of over twenty different plaid fabrics.

Suits

Suits are making a comeback, with interest focused on special treatments such as zippers and novelty closures, softer structuring and new pant styles that go casual or dress-up. Also important, are classic wool suit fabrics such as tweeds, herringbones, checks and traditional colors – all shades of grey, midnight navy, rich loden and cabernet. Pendleton's charcoal luxe-flannel suit fabric has been creating a stir with its ultra-soft hand, light weight and beautiful drape.

Luxury

Luxury is a key theme this season, with consumers indulging in the best of everything. Cashmere/silk, leather and other high-end fabrics are much sought after this season. Along with its legendary wools, Pendleton offers supple leather trimming and, for the holiday season, lush cashmere with crystal beading.

Color

One of the most easily identified fashion trends of the new millennium is color. While black is always in style (and a great foil for color), it's important to add color to your wardrobe for an updated look this season. Trend colors to watch for this fall include shades of red, orchid and soft purples and forest green to loden.

Special Fabrics

Also important this fall are fabrics that are unusual or have interesting qualities about them. Pendleton's microsuede is a big hit, especially when people learn that it's washable. Tweeds are hot, corduroy is on the rebound and fleece continues to gain popularity.

Ready to wear plaids for Fall

Retro

What was old is new again – a full range of retro styles are important this season. Pendlelton's bias-cut plaid skirt has a hip look that brings back memories, and the 49'er jacket, the company's first foray into womens wear, is as stunning now as it was fifty years ago.

Seasonless Wool

Classic, high-quality fabrics are always in style for both professional looks and those casual yet polished days at the office. With the "Essentials", women can look put together every day of the week, every week of the year. Investment-worth seasonless wool allows endless wardrobe variety with just a few key pieces.

Easy-Care Fabrics

Now, more than ever, consumers value easy-care fabrics to help simplify busy lifestyles. Innovations such as washable wool, Dupont Teflon fabric protector, and advanced garment construction are making great strides in decreasing trips to the dry cleaner. Look for washable Shetland-wool crewneck sweaters, as well as the 49'er jacket and shirt for her, both in 100% wool.

ART COMMENTARY

With Marion Wolberg Weiss

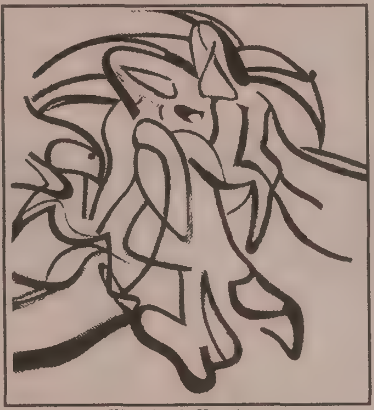
"WILLEM de KOONING: IN PROCESS" AT GUILD HALL

The word "process" is a well-used one in the art critic's lexicon. When all else fails in the way of explanation, "process" is evoked as a generalized concept that applies to a wide range of artistic pursuits: an artist's intention (he/she cares more about process than the final product); the viewer's interpretation (it's a matter of process-discovery); the artist's method (creating is a process).

The more we think about it, the more we realize that "process" can explain the most profound notions, not just art: evolution, life, death, to name a few examples. For Klaus Kertess, guest curator of the de Kooning exhibit now at Guild Hall, process describes the artist's creative methods: its nature (fluidity) and its progression from start to finish.

For this critic, "process" in the case of de Kooning signifies a return to basics, an endeavor that turns back upon itself, proceeding from start to finish to start again. Simply stated – a circular configuration. (This circle concept is not meant to be a literal comment; obviously, de Kooning uses many circle-like sweeps and swoops. The process meant here is a metaphysical one).

Thus, the works done in the late 1980s are not as complex compared to figurative ones created during the 1970s (some of which are also on view). Only a few colors are employed featuring basic lines as the primary aesthetic element. Simplicity returns to de Kooning's work in the 1980s, yet his characteristic animation and energy remain as reminders of what made his art so special from the beginning.



Work by de Kooning

These qualities account for several surprising aspects. One is the objects and faces we may find hidden in his configurations. Another is the way the lines "talk" to each other, especially in a piece called "Conversation" (1987). Is this merely an obvious critical comment or a substantial find? (It's one of the few works that's titled, so whose title is it, anyway?)

A third way both animation and energy impact on the work deals with music. It's a fact that de Kooning had a penchant for classical compositions, and such interest is played out in the manner that his lines inspire lively rhythmic associations: melodic, lilting and pulsating.

Some may suggest that these later paintings may not have been finished, that de Kooning did not return to the "basics" at all. No matter. They are still salient works to be reckoned with.

"Willem de Kooning: In Process" will be on view at East Hampton's Guild Hall until October 8.

HONORING THE ARTIST: JANET CRAWFORD

From her very early days as a youngster growing up in a small Rhode Island town near Providence, Janet Crawford knew she wanted to be an artist. And from those very early days, she also knew she wanted to work with horses. That might present a problem for most people, but not for Ms. Crawford. That's why today she paints horses and shows championship – winning ponies all at the same time.

Being reared near Providence had its advantages for Ms. Crawford in this regard. "I didn't feel I had to get out of that small town; I didn't hate it. A small community can be helpful," she explains. "In fact, a friend of my mother's gave me my first art lessons when I was ten. And I lived on a farm with fourteen acres and had a pony."

After graduating from high school, Ms. Crawford stayed in the area, going to Providence's Rhode Island College where she studied Fine Arts. Ms. Crawford's involvement with horses intensified, however, when she met her husband-to-be soon after graduation, horse trainer Rodney Hicks.

Mr. Hicks was (and still is) a trainer for Hackney ponies, small harness animals that pull two-wheel buggies. Ms. Crawford immediately joined forces with her husband to show his horses. "I love showing the ponies that my husband trains," Ms. Crawford says with obvious enthusiasm. "It's an addiction. I love the excitement that comes with practicing at home and then having five minutes in the ring, working so hard to show off my husband's accomplishments. Everytime I show, I learn something."

Janet Crawford

Such achievements require that Ms. Crawford and her husband travel the circuit, which includes places like the World Championships in Louisville, Kentucky, and the Royal Winter Fair in Canada. "We travel at least one week, maybe two weeks, out of the month," Ms. Crawford remarks, adding that now she can take her young son with her.

Traveling also gives Ms. Crawford the opportunity to pursue her other love of painting: "I try to capture a special moment in the show, not just activities in the ring. Things before and after the event. The cover of this week's Dan's Papers features a horse waiting in the wings."

While Ms. Crawford is quick to note that she usually paints horses that are hunters and jumpers, not Hackney ponies, she is drawn to "quiet moments and dramatic lighting."

And while Ms. Crawford's life is taken up with helping her husband (they live and work on the grounds of a large facility for training Hackney ponies, "Somers Dream"), she makes it clear that, "My art is another way of showing my love for horses."

HAMPTONS NIGHTLIFE WITH CHRISTINE CARROLL

Shout out of the week goes to: My brother Matthew. The skies will be safer now that you will be flying in them. Congratulations, I'm so proud of you.

I really don't want this summer to end, I've been having so much fun. On Thursday I went to 75 Main to have drinks with the girls. My cousin came out to visit and I think it was exactly what we wanted, a nice, quiet, mature crowd. A lot different than what it's like there on Saturdays. Then on Friday we went on a three-hour tour with Maryann from Gilligan's Island. No, I'm not kidding. It was a Malibu Rum promotional gig, and it was awesome. We got to shore okay, so Maryann is okay with boating again. On Saturday we went to The Wild Rose for the first annual Hamptons Comedy Festival run by Abby Russell. It was absolutely hysterical. Angela LaGreca and Joy Behar from ABC's The View were great. Among the others were Danny Cohen and Karyth Foster all the way from Plano Texas, Mary Kennedy and Brian Kilmeade from Fox News, and Cory Kahaney from ABC's Politically Incorrect. The show was sponsored by Dan's Papers, Mikes Hard Lemonade and HBO. All of the proceeds went to Sloan Keteran Memorial for breast and prostate cancer. If you want to be involved next year call Abby at (212) 396-2015. See you all out next weekend!

Take Five 2000

with Jan Silver

We are entering the homestretch for summer entertainment. Good theater, music, films and interesting speakers are still here and the 25 annual Hampton Classic Horse Show opens this Sunday. Some of the special events coming this week include the Bridgehampton Polo Club's final match (Saturday, 4 p.m., $10 donation to South Fork Breast Health Coalition) and a Celebrity Hoops basketball benefit game with NBA star Reggie Miller and others in East Hampton on Sunday. There are two WPBX-FM benefit concerts this weekend, a Latin Dance Party at the Parrish Art Museum on Saturday, a special theatrical performance and party for the Child Development Center of the Hamptons next Monday, and the Tommy Dorsey Orchestra playing a benefit concert for Bide-A-Wee at Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center next Wednesday.

THEATER

Sag Harbor's Bay Street Theatre has a joyous final summer production, the classic Moss Hart/George S. Kaufman comedy You Can't Take It With You, which plays Wednesday through Sunday. On Monday, August 28, Alec Baldwin and F. Murray Abraham are featured in a staged reading of Paddy Chayefsky's The Latent Heterosexual. For tickets to either or both, call the box office at (631) 725-9500.

The Hamptons Shakespeare Festival's delightful production of the comedy Much Ado About Nothing, which includes music and dance, has moved to Agawam Park at the end of Jobs Lane in Southampton. The show plays Wednesday through Sunday, 7:30 p.m. outdoors. Come early and bring a picnic dinner plus sweaters. A volutary contribution of $10 per person is suggested and the show is suitable for children. The company presents a new play reading, The Royal Mess, on Monday, 7:30 p.m., at the Southampton Cultural Center across from the park.

East Hampton's Guild Hall brings in Manhattan's Gotham City Improv to do both set comedy sketches and improvisation (using audience suggestions) on Saturday at 8 p.m. On Sunday night, this year's final American Musical Theater Salute is to the Rodgers family. Music from shows by Richard, Mary and, perhaps, grandson Adam Guettel will be performed in a program hosted by Lee Davis with Broadway artists Judith Blazer, Patrick Quinn and musical director James Followell. For tickets to these performances, call the Guild Hall box office at (631) 324-4050.

The Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center brings in the one-man comedy The Male Intellect: An Oxymoron? on Saturday and Sunday evening. The show stars Robert Dubac (tickets $20-$50; call 631-288-1500).

MUSIC

The Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center presents the New Orleans swamp music king Dr. John on Friday at 8:30 p.m. call (631) 288-1500 for tickets). The American Musical Theater Salute to the Rodgers family at East Hampton's Guild Hall on Sunday evening is discussed above in the "Theater" section.

This is a big weekend for WPBX-FM benefits. On Friday, there is a preview party and silent auction plus music by Vivien and the Merrymakers at the Elaine Benson Gallery, Bridgehampton (from 4 p.m.). The celebration continues at 8 p.m. on Friday evening with jazz vocalist/pianist Eliane Elias performing in concert at Guild Hall, East Hampton, 8 p.m. ($33-$35, (631) 324-4050. The WPBX jazz series at Bridgehampton's Wild Rose on Sunday night concludes with two shows by Matt Hilgenberg (at 7:45 and 10 p.m., $25).

Southampton's Parrish Art Museum has Eddie Palmieri and his Afro-Caribbean Salsa Orchestra as the big attraction for its End-of-the-Season party. The Grammy Award-winning musician specializes in hot salsa, bomba, plena, son montuno and Latin jazz. There is dance instruction at 7 p.m. and the party begins at 8 p.m. Tickets are only $15 for museum members and $35 for non-members.

Broadway composer/lyricist Richard Adler (Damn Yankees, The Pajama Game) is presenting a musical evening with Broadway performers Colleen Fitzpatrick, Patrick Quinn, musical director Paul Katz and emcee Lee Davis on Saturday, 7 p.m., at the Avram Theater of Southampton College as a benefit for the Eastern Long Island Coastal Conservation Alliance. There is a brief reception before the show. For benefit tickets ($100 each or $150 for two), call (631) 283-2370.

The Hal McKusick Big Band will play the music of Duke Ellington and other jazz greats in a concert at the Old Whalers (First Presbyterian) Church in Sag Harbor on Saturday, 8 p.m. Some surprise guests performers are expected (last year Percy Heath sat in). For tickets and information, call (631) 725-0894.

Mellow music favorites at the clubs and restaurants: Bridgehampton—rock & roll with the Lone Sharks on Thursday at the Wild Rose; Dennis Raffelock Trio plays soft jazz and pop standards on Friday at Bridges, 7 to 10 p.m., followed by a dance party; Kipling's Trio plays from the pop standards/jazz canon Friday at Kipling's; Montauk—Stefanie Cardinali, Paul Gene and Rick Salter perform pop classics at Oyster Pond on Tues. and Fri; Sag Harbor—Hunky Page on piano weekends at the American Hotel; East Hampton—Diana Rogers at the Maidstone Arms piano Sunday; Amagansett—at the Stephen Talkhouse this week are Richie Havens on Friday, Clarence "Gate mouth" Brown on Saturday, Nancy Atlas on Sunday, and Marcia Ball on Monday call (631) 267-2117 for tickets.

Space Cowboys

SPACE COWBOYS

Hi-Ho, from Victoria, British Columbia. Wow, Picture this . . . a lovely Technicolor Post Card of the smiling Queen Mother with her daughter looking quite stern on the stamp. How British is Victoria? Well, you can still have High Tea at the Empress Hotel in the Raj Room to the strains of Noel Coward played by a Whistler Painting, pickling away on piano, cello and violin. But, at the huge Quadraflex, the last Brit movie there was probably The Full Monte, and all too frequently the sun sets on the Juan deFuca Strait and Mrs. Butchard's fab gardens. However, Clint Eastwood's latest flick, “Space Cowboys, gets a huge rise from the Victorian Canadians, making everything A-OK, hunky-dory.

AGING BUT REAL MEN IN SPACE

It's a cantankerous and codgerly honey bear story about a task force comprised of a gutsy quartet of Viagra-pending ex-flyboys who undertake a Space Mission they were cheated of in their prime. But, get this straight . . . you don't have to be enrolled in AARP to be taken with this beautifully engineered USAF / NASA yarn that heats up the cocles of your heart and then thrusts mythically into Science Fiction. With a very tentative nod to wild vulgarian, Mel Brooks and his space travesty . . . Space Cowboys might be titled, Space Balls, too. . . since it makes such fond, non-rocket science fun of maleness. Mr. Eastwood has made, as director (and gentle, light fingered piano composer) many fine films. I consider this his best job of directing and his performance as actor isn't exactly a misfire either. He projects a standard that must have compelled the other reluctant heroes to rise as a team (as a repertoire acting team, that is) to Nova brightness . . . worthy of a special joint award. Maybe, its the old squinty-eyed me talking but, Tommy Lee Jones, Donald Sutherland (a Canadian, eh?) and James Garner seem at their peak. Their characters are thoroughly engaging and are not the expletive bleating, misanthropic Grumpy Old Men, I tired of halfway through the first picture. They get laughs and empathy the hard way . . . they earn them.

Space Cowboys grabs you immediately with an exciting and intriguing opening. It is black and white 1958 . . .panoramic sky and desert of Edwards Air Force base and young pilots push their experimental jets too far. Breezy and reckless the pilots are a flying team with enough stuff to be the first in space flight. These guys with the scrubbed youthful 1950's, sweet faces are the craggy fellows who are brought back together much later, for their big moment. . . for, at that time they were passed over. the job, of first in space, went to a chimp, a GIRL chimp. The wise ol' director, Clint, has young look-alike actors in the role but, with the star's voices dubbed in at maybe an octave higher. Ditto for their commanding officer, James Cromwell, a conniving, self serving lout who openly dislikes the rascally team. It is this slimy bugger who is forced to bring the “boys” back. Color takes us to the present.

PUSHING 70 WITH ROCKETRY

The transition from boys to men is as smooth as it is rocky, for even in their 70's, the boys will be boys. Clint, as Frank, now putters in the garage and dallies with his wife in the same place. He'd gone into engineering and had designed an operating system for Skylab that, oddly was used in a Russian Communications Satellite which is now in serious trouble. Clint will have to drop the repair of the garage door opener and go into space to repair the big foundering turkey up there. To be mischievous by retaliatory, he insists he will only go as a team. The sly old Cromwell is forced to agree but, with the proviso that they have to pass every test. Still, he has a few nasty tricks up his undecorated sleeve. Clint rounds up the other “cowboys,” Tank, Mr. Garner, is now a Baptist minister who keeps his good luck can-shaking hula doll on his lectern. Jerry, Mr. Sutherland, designs fast roller coasters. It goes along with his penchant for thrills with fast women . . . half his age. Hawk, Tommy Lee, the best pilot is still flying. . . an old crop-dusting biplane he uses also to shake up passengers who want to be shaken up. Once together, they are their old selves. . .er, I mean their young selves . . .er, you know what I mean, the bantering geezers take everything in their only somewhat wrinkled stride. Training and trials of NASA's fitness program.are rough. . see them stripped for a physical done without handsome body doubles, that's some spirit!

NOT OLDER, JUST BETTER

The immensely, talented actors themselves shine through their tarnished-by-age characters as if someone had given them a hard rub with Noxon. This movie happily tends to offset the youth culture predominance that is mostly unpolished, if not to say caked with arrogant, dulling stridlessness. It's so good to see some stride and pride. It is interesting to look back to those late 50s when Eastwood and Garner had their own cowboy TV series, Rawhide and Maverick and you think how little they've changed in character but, wow!, how much better they are. Donald Sutherland's witty, classy performance as a Playboy “reader” takes the cake. Younger than the others, Tommy Lee Jones fits in and has a lot to do as the one who flies with problems. A widower and expecting more of life, Mr. Jones Hawk is the films darkened figure and has a brief love affair with the scientist who has helped them get into space . . . she is played by Marsha Gay Harden, The forcefulness of Mr. Jones performance is, as with the others, subtly contained.

When the film shoots out into space and action-adventure . . . go with it! The special effects and camera lighting are wonderful and the quartet still resonates . . . even lighter than air. Space Cowboys, is guaranteed to lift you off the ground. I repeat, there are no age containments for the appreciation of spiritual victories overcoming flagging physicality.

Even the staunchest Victorians are cheering.

silvia lehrer's cooking column

For those with a sweet tooth, a meal isn't complete without dessert. And dessert couldn't be made more simply than with August's gift to sweetness, the ripe summer peach.

At farm stands, produce markets and orchards, where visitors can pick their own, now is the time that tree-ripened, local peaches are at the peak of their perfection. Peaches that are shipped long distance to out-of-state produce brokers must be picked before they are ripe. While it is true that a peach picked before its time continues to ripen and develop flavor, the sugar content, however, is arrested the moment the fruit is plucked from the tree.

Ripe peaches are so plentiful right now you may want to think about all the wonderful ways to eat this luscious fruit. We can halve them and fill them with berries and cream or slice them on top of our cereal or even add to salad greens. They can be used in cobbler and shortcake recipes or baked into the best summer pies.

Choose peaches that are round and plump and free of blemishes with a blush of red color for that "peaches n' cream" look. When you bite into a peach that spurts juice down your chin and tastes super sweet, you can be sure you are eating a tree-ripened fruit.

POACHED PEACH AND BLUEBERRY COMPOTE

This delicious compote can hold in the refrigerator for days and be ready when you are to serve topped with your favorite ice cream.

Yield: 1 1/2 cups

6 ripe peaches, about 2 pounds
1 cup water
1/2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
1/2 point blueberries, rinsed

1. Plunge peaches into a large pot of rapidly boiling water and simmer briskly for 2-3 minutes. Drain and cover with cold water. Peel and cut into quarters, discarding pits.

2. For a simple syrup place water and sugar in a medium saucepan and bring to a boil, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Simmer briskly until reduced by half. Place peaches, vanilla and lemon juice in syrup mixture and simmer for 3-4 minutes. Add the blueberries, stir to mix and remove from heat. Pour into a serving bowl and chill thoroughly. Serve with a dollop of ice cream, if desired.

OLD-FASHIONED PEACH SHORTCAKE

Shortcake dough, also known as baking powder biscuits, is relatively simple to prepare. The dough may be cut into triangles (a pretty effect) or traditional rounds, as desired. Prepared them up to a day in advance then split and serve with lightly sweetened poached peaches or other poached fruits.*

Serves 8-10

For the peaches
2- 21/2 pounds ripe peaches
4 tablespoons granulated sugar

For the shortcake
2 cups all-purpose flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
1/2 cup (8 tablespoons) unsalted butter
3/4 cup whole milk
2 tablespoons heavy cream, to glaze

Whipped cream for garnish

1. Plunge peaches into a large pot of rapidly boiling water and simmer briskly for 2-3 minutes. Drain and cover with cold water. Peel and cut into quarters, discarding pits. Place peaches and accumulated juices in a medium saucepan with the sugar. Simmer over medium heat for 3-4 minutes. Remove peaches and boil syrup until reduced to almost a glaze. Pour over the peaches. Can be prepared ahead and refrigerated.

2. For the shortcake, sift flour, baking powder and salt into a mixing bowl. Mix briefly then cut in the butter with a pastry blender or two knives and mix until the texture of very coarse meal. Make a well in the center and pour in the milk. Stir briskly with a large wooden spoon just until the dough holds together. Knead gently on a lightly floured board seven or eight times. Wrap in a square of wax paper and chill for one hour or overnight.

CHEF SPOTLIGHT: TODD JACOBS TIERRA MAR In his early years in the kitchen, Todd Jacobs held the positions of chef poissonier at the Maurice Restaurant and garde manger at Le Regence, both well-respected French restaurants in New York City. Jacobs honed his skills and was soon given the chance to shine when he relocated to the Hamptons, eventually opening his own restaurant: Tierra Mar. Recently Jacobs moved Tierra Mar to a new location on the ocean at the Westhampton Bath & Tennis Hotel. He also operates Solly Brown's, a casual take out restaurant, at that location. At Tierra Mar, Jacobs received a "Very Good" from The New York Times Long Island edition in 1994 when he first opened and again in 2000. Daniel Van Der Beek Babette's Daniel Van Der Beek began his cooking career working under a classically trained Austrian chef. He then went on to work with the renowned chefs Paul Prudhomme and Buzzy O'Keefe. Fascinated by the limitations of creating whole meals with dietary restrictions, Van Der Beek began to focus his cooking on vegetarian inspired dishes. After a few years of experimenting at Hearts and East West in Manhattan, Van Der Beek opened Babette's in East Hampton with his wife Barbara. His menu includes many vegetarian dishes, but also includes fish and chicken entrees for the non-vegetarian.

Dining IN THE HAMPTONS

Nicks

148 South Emerson, Montauk
668-4800

"Head East and turn Right at Johnny's Tackle," said a friendly voice over the telephone. Nick's Restaurant couldn't be easier to find. It sits atop his out-door "Boat-bar," and proudly overlooks the ocean. The atmosphere at Nick's is tranquil, and the food and service is first rate. Nick is a gracious host, and can be easily recognized by his big smile and brightly colored Hawaiian shirt. Claire Dowling, Nick's partner, also oversees the restaurant and is very charming.

I was immediately seated and waited upon at the restaurant. I was visually taken by the dining area. It is lit by natural light, and can be compared to a greenhouse, because all the paneling is translucent. I felt refreshed and relaxed, as a wonderful breeze came through the window near where I was sitting. The deck area adjacent to the restaurant is also charming and romantic, for anyone to enjoy a sunset or just to watch the waves. As I was waiting, I was given an "Amuse"plate. It is meant to be a fun pre-appetizer. It was a warmed pita with cucumber yogurt dip in a small dish.

As I awaited my meal, Nick came over to my table and joined me. He is a very interesting person with a unique background. Before opening the restaurant, Nick worked as a successful Tax Lawyer and Publisher for 20 years. Claire also found success, working in the garment industry for some of the top name brands. Together, they opened the restaurant three years ago -and couldn't be happier since. You could say that the restaurant is a conglomeration of both of their unique personalities. Nick has spent time in Louisiana, and the South. This "Southern Exposure" has greatly influenced the menu at Nick's. Here are some of the appetizers that I tried: Firecracker Chicken Rolls, Fried Calamari Tempura Style, Nick's Bourbon Street BBQ Shrimp, Clams Casino New Orleans Style, and Ceadarwood Grilled Portobello Mushrooms.

Nick was very proud and confident of his Sous Chef Misha Levin. Misha studied under the famous Chef Emeril "Bam, kick it up a notch" Lagasse. That is when we go on the topic of spicy food. Nick offered me some Clam Chowder, and I gave it a try. This was the point of no return for me however. When I was eight years old, my Mom took me to Mystic Seaport. There, I discovered my undying love for Clam Chowder. I ate it for every meal, lunch, dinner, and oh yes… breakfast. Nick's Award Winning Clam Chowder awoke my love for the stuff. "It is a secret recipe," Nick told me. Nick and his Chef Brian Mountain came up with the recipe together – and let me tell you it is delicious. (Note to reader: The Clam Chowder Cook-off is held on Columbus Day Weekend in Montauk.)

My entree was grilled fillet mignon, served with shitaki mushrooms and cabernet sauce on a potato pancake with warm spinach. This was the nicest steak I've had on the East End. I could have cut it with my fork, and the sauce & mushrooms were delicious. After the steak, I went to finish off the rest of my soup. I was so concentrated on my soup that I did not realize that desert was on its way. The next thing I saw was the chef standing with one of Nick's homemade desserts, Strawberry Shortcake… my Achilles heel.

Nick's restaurant is a great place, that is why I am writing about it. It is a place to mark on your road map and check out. Everything on the menu is delicious, so be adventurious and try something new! The drive is fun too, and makes a great day trip for couples or families. Also, there is a children's menu; and Nick's does customized catering. The wine menu is short and to the point. It supports a good selection of everything popular, and proudly displays the local wines.

Nick's restaurant is a contender, and will no doubt be one of those restaurants that will be around for a long time to come. I can honestly say that the food and atmosphere there is well above par. Nick's unique taste, and passion for food, is embodied by his restaurant. Nick's flair for the south, combined with New England favorites, equals an A+ on this review.

Driver's Note: start from Sag Harbor and take 114 East, then take 27 East all the way to Montauk. When you get to Montauk, go through town and… Head East and turn Right at Johnny's Tackle. It is easy to recognize, outside of Nick's is the "boat-bar." The bar is the actual back-half of a boat – ask Claire about the story behind it. Nick's also has live entertainment 7 days a week, and has theme nights: Game Show Mania, and Classic Disco Night.

About me: I have worked in restaurants throughout my life. Initially, I thought it was a good way to earn an honest buck. I started off as a ceramic technician; then I moved up into the world of prep-cooking; then worked as dessert chef; and finally worked as a cook. In the view of this writer, there is nothing more pleasing and harmonious than the symphony of conversation over silverware on dinner plates.

Serafina
29 Main Street, Sag Harbor
725-0101

Can lightning strike twice? Perhaps. But more to the point, if you get a great meal twice at the same restaurant, now, that's a much more pleasant—and appetizing—memory. And you also know that the owners are doing their best to make your meal a memorable one. Such is the case at The Serafina Restaurant, where co-proprietors, Lynn Cardile and Frank Caniglia (also the chef), offer outstanding cuisine, topped only by outstanding service.

My companion and I had not been to the Serafina in some time, yet Lynn greeted us as if were close friends: big smile and a warm handshake. After we exchanged a few pleasantries, she escorted us to a table near the window and gave us menus; it was a bright, late Sunday afternoon, the sun hugging the tops of quaint buildings, a few wisps of clouds in a mellow yellow sky.

Again I was intrigued by the cozy setting: a touch of elegance in fresh flowers from their garden, candles at each table and stylish Victorian hanging lamps.

As soon as we were seated, the waitress brought a basket of fresh warm bread and bread sticks. We requested glasses of ice water with a slice of lemon, and after looking over the wine menu, selected Chardonnay.

Frank spotted us and came over to our table with appetizers he thought we would enjoy: crispy lemon pepper calamari (served with anchovy mayonnaise and seafood marinara); sliced beefsteak tomatoes and fried goat cheese (with sweet red roasted peppers and rosemary black olive vinaigrette). We sampled each of these delicacies, with comments such as ," Wow, taste this!" Or "Would you believe," until our plates were empty. I have never been a calamari fan, until the very moment I took a bite that evening; outstanding crispy lemon flavor—and not to disguise stale food. The fried goat cheese was equally satisfying.

By the time we finished our appetizers, Frank returned with another dish he called a "sampler": spinach raviolis with pomodoro sauce, an item on the "specials" menu. This, too, was a taste treat, reminding me of my mother's ravioli—only much more exotic.

For entrees, my companion ordered veal porcini (sauteed medallions of veal with porcini cognac glace). Being a lover of seafood, I ordered sauteed flounder with a special wine lemon parsley butter sauce.

As we began to taste our generous servings, Frank came back to our table and asked us if we liked our entrees. After telling him how delicious everything was I began to ask questions: "How long have you been in the restaurant business? What got you started. Did you take courses in cooking? Were you always a chef?"

Frank seemed pleased by my curiosity and responded with enthusiasm. He and Lynn had owned the Serafina for four years. As to how he got started, well, that was a long story, going back to his childhood, when he used to tag along with his mother as she prepared dinner, thus getting an early start in the culinary arts. He admired how she cooked and, as he put it, "developed a sense of taste for cooking," which means even more than simply a taste for food: it suggests an epicurean involvement which demands excellence in preparing food.

Though he told us that he had majored in psychology, both as an undergraduate and graduate, Frank later graduated from French Culinary Institute studying under Chef Jacques Pepin and Chef Alain Siliac, where he developed the technique necessary in creating the European menu he offers at Serafina. Now that really knocked me for a loop. Why would someone with a background in psychology want to be a restauranteur and chef? I didn't ask him that question, for as I began to mull it over, I realized that Frank was, in a sense, practicing psychology; he was intent on making people feel happy about food, and it seems to me that having a "happy tummy" is a prerequisite for having a positive, happy mental attitude.

Returning to the menu, you might want to consider that Serafina offers a variety of appetizers in addition to those already mentioned, such as grilled Peruvian Shrimp, local Little Neck Clams Casino, Artichoke Salad with bleu cheese dressing, and cultured Prince Edward Island mussels bathed in pesto. Entrees include Pollo Serafina, Cotoletto Siciliano, Veal & Artichokes, fresh fish of that day and their signature dish Cioppino, a medley of seafood stew in a delicate delicious mushroom sauce over pasta.

Don't miss this lovely couples' treasure of a restaurant.

Enjoy, enjoy,

–Alex Russo

Dining IN THE HAMPTONS

While in Southampton, we set foot in another zone as we entered the restaurant "75 Main" - where else - on Main Street. As you make the transition, and find yourself wrapped within soft amber walls, your entire being is subdued into a mellow yellow. The oversized Wainscot bar is centrally placed, enticing you to fraternize with other patrons, who are also enjoying the cool and relaxed, simple elegance.

The nine-year success of its ambiance may be the result of owner, Dr. June Spirer's ingenuity, who also employs waiters as congenial as Christian Estrada, chefs as genius as David Girard, and managers as gregarious as John K. Darrah.

As the Executive Chef, Mr. Girard, hails from Park Avalon and the Rainbow Room in Manhattan; his specialties being, the "unusual" and the "exotic" sesame tiger shrimp and the rack of lamb.

My husband Bruce and I met with Linda Cirella, an old friend from high school that we hadn't seen in 34 years and who we wanted to impress. We didn't have to make an impression at all; 75 Main took care of everything from start to finish. For appetizers we chose Prince Edward Island Mussels, prepared with scallions and tomato in a Chinese black bean sauce, a spicy blend of Crispy Calamari, tomato Gazpacho and the traditional Caesar salad. But, Christian had greater expectations, serving us dishes that boggled our senses: Thai-spiced Crab Cake with corn salsa that stood out as a work of art, the pungent duck & roast vegetable spring roll, and the killer - sautéed Florida Rock Shrimp prepared with Chinese green beans, virgin olive oil and Spanish sherry vinegar.

Next, the procession of entrees: I can't describe the look on Bruce's face when he took his first bite of the filet mignon cooked with curry and crushed red peppers. "Where have I been? he asked. This is, by far, the best I've had in my entire life." I loved the Chilean Sea Bass made with eggplant, capers, black olives and a hint of garlic. And the Sesame Tiger Shrimp prepared over vermicelli noodles, scallions, and broccoli rabe in a hot & sour broth mesmerized Linda. An extra special treat was the sea scallop Stir Fry with snow peas, plum tomato, capicola and dry vermouth, something I wouldn't usually order, but highly recommend here. The grilled tuna looked superb, but I couldn't make room for it, and I noticed Linda's fork was now reaching her mouth in slow motion.

"I think I'm getting high on the food," she laughed, "but I'm not inhaling."

Sitting in one of the grand, high-style window seats, we got to enjoy a break from the over-indulgence of the fusion-style cooking, and watched the shoppers pass outside in one of the most picturesque towns in the country.

Christian, who resembles Erick Estrada the actor, continued waiting on us and tempting our dining pleasures. "Our desserts are prepared in house," he said. "Why don't you try a few." How could we say no? My favorite was the crème brulee, and we also had the chocolate cake with a hint of ginger – mmmm – and the crispy peach crumb ala' mode – scrumptious.

To top off the evening, it was apropos when manager, John Darrah sat with us for quite awhile and informed us that, he too, went to high school in Nassau County. Before we knew it, we were discussing stories from the 60's: crazy parties, surfing at Gilgo Beach, and football games.

John said, "This restaurant is like a theatre and we are all the stars." Our goal is to provide excellent service and to make a full circle, from the mechanics in making "fresh" food to serving it in an atmosphere that is not frazzled." We noticed John had stars all over his shirt. He was a lot of fun!

75 Main is open year round. Hours: weekends 8:30 a.m. to 4 a.m. and weekdays 9:30 a.m. 'til 11 p.m., specializing in the needs of whoever rolls out of bed at whatever time for Brunch and serving appetizers, specialty pizza and pastas or classic egg dishes, waffles, Challah French Toast and Old Fashioned Waffles. If you prefer, you may order Burgers and Fries, Seared Tuna Tortilla, Moroccan Spiced Salmon, Chicken Quesadilla, Stir-Fry Vegetable, or a Grilled Chicken Focaccia Sandwich.

Aside from the extraordinary cuisine, there is an energetic DJ entertaining a trendy crowd of all ages on weekends.

Just a little pricey for absolutely "priceless" food. (631) 283-7575 You will not regret it.

Preheat oven to 425 degrees

3. Roll out dough on a lightly floured board to a large rectangle a little more than 1/2-inch thick; reroll and cut scraps. Trim edges and cut into triangles* (or rounds), about 1 1/2-2 inches wide and place on an ungreased cookie sheet. For glistening brown tops, brush with glaze. Bake in preheated oven for 12-15 minutes until the tops are lightly browned. Cool on a rack then split the biscuits. Spoon peaches (or other poached fruits) liberally on bottom half. Place the tops back on and garnish with whipped cream.

GINGER PEACH CRUMBLE

This Ginger Peach Crumble, from Todd English's The Figs Table, Simon and Schuster, caught my fancy. Hope you enjoy it too.

Serves 6-8

6 large fresh peaches, cored and cut into large dice
Juice of one lemon
1 tablespoon, plus 1 teaspoon finely crystallized ginger
1 tablespoon vanilla extract or brandy
2 tablespoon sugar
1/4 teaspoon freshly grated nutmeg

For the topping
1 cup all-purpose flour
1 cup rolled oats
1/2 cup coarsely chopped walnuts or pecans (optional)
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon freshly grated nutmeg
1 teaspoon ground ginger
1 teaspoon kosher salt
1/2 cup unsalted butter, cold and cut into small pieces

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Lightly butter an 8" x 8" baking pan.

1. For the peaches: Place the peaches, lemon juice, ginger, vanilla or brandy, sugar and nutmeg in the prepared pan and toss to mix.

2. For the topping: Place the flour, oats, nuts, if desired, sugar, nutmeg, ginger and salt in a medium bowl and toss to combine. Using a pastry cutter or two knives, add the butter and mix until crumbly. Sprinkle over the peach mixture and smooth out the top.

3. Transfer to preheated oven and bake until golden brown about 25 minutes.
Serve immediately or at room temperature.

Variation: Substitute pears for the peaches and omit the vanilla extract.

Proposal Threatens Cancer Care

Meetinghouse La., Southampton (631) 287-5085 has announced a call to action for those in the East End cancer community. The ability of physicians to provide chemotherapy, in their own offices to patients on Medicare, is under imminent threat if a current health care proposal is allowed to go unchallenged. This month, the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA) is planning to override Congress and effectively lower the amount that doctors are reimbursed for chemotherapy drugs needed to treat elderly patients on Medicare. This means that physicians will no longer have adequate resources to provide chemotherapy in their offices, and that patients will be shifted to hospital care, resulting in one less choice for patients. According to Louis Avvento, MD of East End Hematology Oncology, "I am very concerned about HCFA's proposal. It will result in limited choices for East End hematology and cancer patients. Getting chemotherapy in an office setting tends to be a personalized and convenient approach to high-quality cancer treatment. In addition to losing an excellent source of care, East End patients would experience untenable travel distances and waiting times if forced into larger institutions."

Unless HCFA, Congressional Representatives and the Administration hear from you, this ill-advised proposal will move forward. This issue is of the utmost urgency and requires immediate action as HCFA could issue a program memorandum advising insurers to reduce reimbursement for cancer therapy at any time. Once HCFA issues the memorandum, carriers will implement the revised reimbursement policy in their fee schedule updates on October 1, 2000. Physicians and patients would be affected immediately.

East End Hematology Oncology encourages everyone interested in preserving quality cancer care to contact their member of Congress and encourage them to speak out against this proposal. To contact your Congressional representatives, please visit http://congress.nw.dc.us/asco/. This part of the American Society of Clinical Oncologist's (ASCO) website provides names, addresses, phone/fax numbers and e-mail addresses for members of Congress. It also provides a suggested form letter that can be edited and personalized. East End Hematology Oncology will also gladly provide sample letters upon request.

On East End Hematology Oncology: With offices in Riverhead and Southampton, East End Hematology Oncology is committed to providing East End patients professional hematologic and oncologic care in a compassionate and supportive atmosphere. The leading medical staff is comprised of practice founder Dr. Louis Avvento, Dr. Susan Emanuele and Dr. Marilyn McLaughlin. The board-certified physicians and oncology certified RN's at East End Hematology Oncology provide their patients with knowledge of state-of-the-art treatment techniques and expertise, treating a wide range of cancers.

Get A Bite With The New Dentistry

Well, you don't have to be a model or an actor to look like one. If you have spaced, crooked, chipped or worn teeth; if your teeth are discolored or you're unhappy with your smile, you may be interested in porcelain laminate veneers – a smile make-over in two visits. An impression is taken at the first visit; porcelain covers are made for your front teeth, correcting all the imperfections and then bonding takes place on the second visit.

In one week you can have a perfect smile. You can also whiten discolored teeth at home in just a few hours.

Porcelain veneers are a beautiful and simple way to solve the problems of crooked or spaced teeth and can even lengthen teeth that are too short. They resist wear, stain and discoloration better than bonding and are less expensive and more conservative than capping. Usually there is very little drilling required and it may be done without anesthesia.

A properly shaped, fitted and bonded porcelain crown or veneer is the most aesthetic method of restoring the health, strength and appearance of fractured and worn teeth, as well as teeth that have been weakened by root canal therapy.

Dental implants are the other miracle of modern dentistry. Dental implants are artificial teeth that are surgically anchored into your jawbone. They're permanent and stable. They don't rely on other teeth for support, as other dental appliances do. And they look and feel like your natural teeth. They are, in fact, the next best thing to natural teeth.

Patients treated with implants experience a significant improvement in their ability to chew food. They feel more comfortable and their smiles are greatly enhanced.

Implants require two procedures. During the first, tiny titanuim posts are threaded like a screw into your jawbone. The bone then grows around these posts, anchoring them. After the jaw heals, the second procedure is performed, during which permanent porcelain bridges or individual teeth are screwed or cemented onto the titanium posts. Total treatment time from placement of the posts to the final restoration is usually about six months. Implants serve to provide permanent teeth, when otherwise not possible, instead of removable partial or full dentures. Dentures can also be anchored to implants to make them more stable.

Bleaching, bonding, tooth-colored fillings, reshaping of teeth and minor tooth movement complete the armamentarium of the cosmetic dentist. All of these tools make it possible today to provide you with the smile of your dreams.

The simplest technique for smile improvement is tooth whitening, which involves removing the yellow stain from the enamel of your teeth. Like a deep cleaning, oxidizing gels bleach out stain from your teeth by the placement of a custom fitted tray over your teeth. Usually an hour a day over a week or two in the comfort of your home can produce optimum results.

In-Office Chemotherapy at Risk!

New Government Proposal Would Result in Loss of Quality Cancer Care

The ability of physicians to provide chemotherapy in their own offices to patients on Medicare is under imminent threat if a current health care proposal is allowed to go unchallenged. This month, the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA) is planning to override Congress and effectively lower the amount that doctors are reimbursed for chemotherapy drugs needed to treat elderly patients on Medicare. This means that physicians will no longer have adequate resources to provide chemotherapy in their offices, and that patients will be shifted to hospital care, resulting in one less choice for patients.

Not only would this change ultimately be more expensive for Medicare, but it would be much less desirable for patients who may have to travel longer distances, wait for longer periods of time, and receive less personal attention for their cancer care.

Unless HCFA, Congressional Representatives and the Administration hear from you, this ill-advised proposal will move forward. This issue is of the utmost urgency and requires immediate action as HCFA could issue a program memorandum advising insurers to reduce reimbursement for cancer therapy at any time. Once HCFA issues the memorandum, carriers will implement the revised reimbursement policy in their fee schedule updates on October 1, 2000. Physicians and patients would be affected immediately.

The Five Traits of A Better Golf Instructor

There are usually five common traits of a great golf teacher. They include good social skills, being supportive and encouraging, being up to date with new technology, being a talented golfer and having specialization skills. In good social skills, the pro should be able to relate well to others and express a warm and genuine concern for their students. Much of good teaching is good coaching.

In the category of being encouraging and supportive, good instructors are very optimistic, positive and have a healthy aura around them. One should feel good in their presence.

The leaders in any field tend to keep abreast of advances in their area of expertise. Great teachers realize that golf requires constant learning. They have a good eye for the swing and will use video equipment, cameras and even computer programs as sophisticated tools.

In the process of getting a point across through demonstration, it helps to be talented for the student to see the proper swing. This attribute will definitely attract the better golfer who is looking for that little extra to separate them from the pack. Also, the art of visualization becomes easier through the pro's expertise.

The final category, specialization, is important as ones field grows. This ability to manage the information already learned is necessary. My own specialty is the short game. I've learned over the years that this area makes up 55% of the game. The key for potential clients is to realize this process and pick accordingly.

If your pro doesn't have at least four of these traits, consider changing to another professional, like myself. I feel with robust backing of the East End community, my traits are close to incomparable.

Brian Misiewicz is a teaching professional at Calverton Links and can be reached at 369-5200 for individual, group or playing lessons.

The Latino Garden

More and more, my clients are asking for more color in the garden, especially bright and strong colors, such as blue and lavender. There's no doubt that the Latino influence is all around us, more than ever. This tendency reflects also in the landscaping. Floral gardens with masses of yellow, orange and red are very dramatic and strong. They attract wildlife such as birds and butterflies more than any of the other colors combined. These colors are great points of reference. They give beautiful accents to hard structures like houses, walls, pools and harbors.

A breathtaking combination of yellow, orange and red flowers starts with the yellow trumpet daffodil in April. This would be followed by the red poppy variety, called Papaver Orientale Turkenlouis in May, the orange and red oriental lily in June, a yellow coreopsis variety called Verticillata Moonbeam in July and rudheckias, a variety named Fulgida Goldstrum from August until the frost arrives. The trick is to make the rudbeckias start to bloom in August instead of July is to cut them in half by the end of June or the beginning of July. Be careful not to cut too much, that means do not cut more than one half. If you do, you can end up with no blossoms for an entire season. To make this garden thrive and look astonishing, the colors must be grouped in bold clumps and each type of flower should be cut back immediately after the blooming period to let the next type of flower show by itself.

Composition of different kinds of annuals using flowers of different colors and shapes in the same urn, planter, or pot remind you of the Country or Victorian style. Pots with unique large plants, such as birds of paradise, a palm tree or cactuses are being used quite frequently for the outside. These suggest a minimalistic elegance. Annual and perennial ferns in borders, pots, or baskets are magnificent plants that also mark the Latino influence in the garden. Tithania, a Mexican sunflower in different tones of orange and yellow, is a great flower that blooms for the whole season and can be used in pots or beds. Even though color association and plant selection is often a matter of personal taste, these are ideas for hot and cool Latino-style gardens.

Frederico Azevedo is a landscape designer and the owner of Unlimited Earth Care, Inc. He would be happy to help you if you have any planting or design questions. Please call 631-725-7551 or visit his website at www.unlimitedearth.com.

EAST END FARMING WITH JOE GERGELA

The growing season this year will go down as one of the most unusual in recent memory (at least mine). I don't remember a season so wet, and so cool occurring in a long time. This past weekend felt like September rather than August. The wet conditions did a lot of damage to particular crops. Believe it or not, the constant wet, fog and lack of sun and wind did more damage than the rain. We did get considerable amounts of rain, but not flooding conditions. The rain fell in one to two inch increments, so there really weren't any significant problems. The constant wet conditions bring a host of bacterial and fungal disease concerns. Now that the sun and wind are back, we do hope the rest of the season can be salvaged.

The cool weather reminds me of years past and what we would be doing on the farm in August. For starters, most years we would be moving "irrigation" pipe, as August is generally dry. The other major chore was trying to finish up planting fall crops, such as cabbage, cauliflower, etc. We always tried to be finished by August 15. Wait too much later than that and the crops may not make it to harvest, depending upon the weather in the fall. Although we were planting, we were still in harvest mode for summer crops – early tomatoes, melons, corn and other vegetables were still coming in. We grew a little bit of everything for a "yard trade" as well as my grandmother's and mother's farmstand. Potatoes and cauliflower were our dominant crops, so they took up the majority of time and effort.

In between everything else, we would be getting the potato harvester, or "combine" as it was called, ready for the harvest season. We always grew early varieties – we would actually be harvesting superiors during August – but the majority of the crops were for the fall and went into storage. The potato harvester always needed to be maintained or else we would be having a lot of down time since the help would be standing around as Dad and I got the combine fixed. Our potato storage was below ground with dirt floors. Some years, the coolness of the barn allowed the potatoes to stay until the next spring. In August, we would clean the barn and actually run cold irrigation water into the barn and flood it. The water would take several days to disappear and we just let it settle until we started storing potatoes in mid-September. Modern potato storages have concrete floors and are climate and humidity controlled, allowing the potatoes to store properly. Most farmers today do store some potatoes but generally are finished grading by March for the start of the next season. It was always a gamble to hold potatoes until late spring, particularly if there were quality problems going into the barn.

There are times I truly miss being on the farm, especially during harvest season. The smell of freshly dug potatoes, the cool soil, seeing the rewards of your hard work – these are all really something to experience. The old adage, "you can take the boy out of the country but you can't take the country out of the boy" holds true for all of us former farmers. I still like to stop in and see some of the guys, just so I can jump on the combine and relive, just a little, those days on the farm.

It's Our Garden WITH ELIZABETH AND CROW MILLER

A shiny, bright red apple may seem like a living illustration of ripeness, but it's actually an indication that the apple is not quite there yet. You should pick your apples just after the skin loses its shine, that's when the taste becomes perfectly balanced.

After gently plucking all the ripe fruit from our trees, we put those unshiny apples into bushel baskets and then set those baskets on the breezeway between our house and the barn.

A bell pepper only achieves its peak of ripeness when it finishes turning from green to red. But what if frost is fast approaching and full color is an impossible dream? Wait to pick as long as possible, most pepper varieties will lose some of their underripe, bitter taste when they reach full size, become smooth, and change from light green to dark green.

You want nice, big string beans, but you don't want them to get tough, chewy and stringy, right? Start picking your bean patch when the bean seeds just begin to show through the first pods, and pick at least every other day after that to make sure that no beans get too mature. You can pick your beans younger. We believe you get the best bean taste by picking the bigger ones. And pick those string beans first thing in the morning, if you wait until afternoon or evening, you may get soft, limp beans.

Pick the flower heads while they are still tight and hard for broccoli, and rock hard for cauliflower to get full flavor and firm texture. If you're not going to put the heads right into the steamer or freezer, immerse the stem end in a pitcher of water and keep it in the refrigerator until you're ready to use it. Treat it like a decorative cut flower, and a head of broccoli or cauliflower can be kept in good eating condition for a week or more.

Blackberries and raspberries are ripe when they pop off the vine easily. Blackberries come off with the core intact and raspberries pull away from the core. If you have to tug to get the berry off, don't pull harder, leave it; it's not ripe or sweet yet. Large-scale berry growers often shake blueberry bushes at harvest time in the belief that only the ripe ones will fall off the bush. You'll harvest riper blueberries if you take the time to pick only those that are totally blue. Blueberries sweeten as they sit on the vine, so don't pick any that have even tiny green spots.

What about corn? Corn is ready to eat when the silks have dried to within a half-inch of the tips of the ears and the kernels in the third full row down from the top squirt a milky, rather than clear juice when pressed with your thumb.

A carrot's color is the best way to know when it is ripe. If it's pale orange, it's not going to be sweet enough. How can you tell the color of a carrot that's growing underground? We scratch a bit of soil away around the top of one side of the carrot. It doesn't hurt the carrot one bit.

The best measure of a ripe cucumber is its size. We pick our slicing cucumbers when they are about six inches long and firm; picklers get picked at about four to five inches. Don't let them get bigger than that, because a cucumber left on the vine too long gets fat, mushy and seedy. If you see yellow on them at all, you've missed the boat.

Don't judge a cherry by its color. Gently press the fruit with your thumb. If they're hard, wait a few more days, until they get a little plumper and softer. Then they'll be perfectly sweet and juicy. It makes a difference whether you leave the stem on the tree or pull it off when you are cherry picking. Keep the stem in the cherry.

Your grapes are ripe when they are fully colored and intensely aromatic. If you're growing grapes that have a fragrance, you'll know when they're ripe before you get within thirty feet of them.

Grapes develop more sugar and lose acid as they hang on the vine, which is desirable with some varieties and not with others. If, for example, you have a low acid grape, they will become insipid after hanging too long. On the other hand, if you have a highly acidic variety, a couple extra days will make them tastier. But don't let them hang on too long or they will lose their taste and texture.

To harvest your table grapes, simply snip each cluster where its stem is attached to the vine, and then hang the clusters by their stems in a cool, dark place that has good air circulation and moderate humidity.

POLICE BLOTTER

Although he wasn't even driving, William Sinclair, 56, of the Bronx was charged with DWI in Greenport. According to police, he was found passed out behind the wheel with the engine running.

In other motorist mischief, a 27-year-old Calverton man was arrested on Sunrise Highway near exit 65. Not only was he allegedly driving with four suspensions on his license, but he was allegedly trying to be inconspicuous by driving along at 85 miles-per-hour.

In East Hampton, at the Maidstone Club, vandals carved a four-foot by four-foot hole in the seventh green. Although the hole is only an inch deep, it still makes putting difficult. The vandalism was discovered by the groundskeeper.

An explosion, followed by smoke billowing out of the men's room door at Sixmilecross in Montauk attracted the attention of Thomas Flood, an owner. It was not an end result of the food being served at the bar that caused the raucous however, it seems that somebody decided to fire a boat rescue flare in the men's room. The distressed sailor was never found and it is not known whether or not his boat sank in the toilet.

A barn on Fireplace Road in Springs was burglarized. Among the items taken were a harpoon keg, a piano stool, a railroad lantern, a bullhorn, some clamming equipment and other interesting items. The owner noticed the missing stuff last week, but said that the thievery could have been committed anytime in the past year.

At a Wainscott restaurant, a waiter spilled wine on a customer's shirt. The restaurant offered to pay for the bottle of wine, clean or even replace the shirt. The customer was not amused however, and left without paying his $175 check.

An accident involving a deer occurred in Wainscott, however it was not a car that hit the animal, but a airplane trying to take off from the East Hampton Airport. The Piper Saratoga sustained some damage to the wing resulting in a minor fuel leak. Nobody was injured in the plane.

Dan's LETTERS

STAY OFF THE GRASS

Dear Dan,

Question: I, too, am a "frequent visitor to the Hamptons," as you and your columnists so tediously put it. I, however, arrive in an Isuzu box truck rather than a Lamborghini, a Hummer or a Land Rover. I perform very necessary work when I am here and was doing so this Friday, August 11th, when a woman in a black Jaguar icily and with a sneer confronted me about being "on her grass." As I do not know the upper David White's Lane area and had spied a back gate opening on to what I thought was a road (it was her driveway), I was taken aback by this supercilious Southampton confrontation. I made an apology for my ignorance, and beep-beeped my box truck backwards as my castigator glared at me, until I was out of the driveway. Needless to say, I was very hurt by the manner in which I was spoken to by this matron, and I only hope I may be invited back at some future time to render my services to the household serviced by that driveway. Just sign me . . . Really Down in Up-Island.

TO RUN OR NOT TO RUN

Dear Dan,

Connecticut Senator Lieberman has a difficult decision to make after agreeing to be Vice President Al Gore's running mate on the Democratic ticket this November. Does he run for Vice President and remain on the ballot in Connecticut for reelection to the United States Senate? In 1988, Texas Senator Lloyd Bentsen ran for Vice President on the ticket with Massachusetts Governor Michael Dukakis while running for reelection to the United States Senate. By hedging this bet, Senator Bentsen continued to hold elective office.

Should Senator Lieberman do the same and continue to run for two public offices at the same time? How can the rest of America believe that Vice President Gore would make a good president if his own running mate has so little faith in him that he would also run for reelection to the senate? Voters in Connecticut deserve a real choice for senator, rather than having Governor John Rowland fill any future vacancies. Will Senator Lieberman be a typical career politician, or will he show profiles in courage and run for one public office at a time? We await his decision.

THANK YOU

Dear Dan,

On behalf of the Long Island Mineral and Geological Society, we wish to thank you for helping us advertise our Gem, Mineral & Jewelry Show on July 29th and 30th at the Mattituck High School.

We had great success this year and our profits were up. This will enable us, a non-profit organization, to donate much of this to school children.

You did a wonderful job for us this year and we appreciate it. Thank you.

PROGRESS?

Dear Dan,

I was away for a couple of weeks, so you can imagine how surprised I was to find the Village of Bridgehampton was renamed STARBUCKS COFFEE while I was gone. I wasn't even aware it was being considered. Evidently, nor did the powers that be. The mind reels at the thought of the negotiations that resulted in allowing this HOLLYWOOD on the hillside size signage to be erected. It is not only out of scale for the building, it is out of scale for the Village. They must truly believe it serves as a beacon to draw the caffeine-deprived from great distances. I'm sure quite the opposite will be the case.

LANGUAGE BARRIER

Dear Dan,

I was fifteen years of age working in a kosher delicatessen in Brooklyn, the kind where they cut the meat right before you behind the counter. In order to keep the area behind the counter less slippery, they sprinkle sawdust periodically. The owner, a man with a thick Yiddish accent, told me to go downstairs and bring up some "sudas." Thinking I knew what he wanted, I went to the basement, dipped the dust pan into the barrel of sawdust, brought it upstairs and blithely started sprinkling the sawdust behind the counter. The owner, exasperated by this stupid kid, told me he wanted me to bring up the "sudas," not the "sudas." I told him that was exactly what I was doing. Eventually, I understood I was to carry the boxes of sodas up to the restaurant.

I was nineteen and I was working as a waiter in the Catskills for the Passover season. At breakfast one morning, a gentleman who obviously had emigrated from Eastern Europe asked me, with a thick accent, for some "cereal midott milk." I asked again and with an edge of annoyance, he repeated "cereal midott milk." As a fairly intelligent teenager, I presume he wanted his cereal without milk. I thus brought him a plain bowl of cereal, placed it before him and was the subject of his wrath as he repeated again and again that he want "cereal midott milk, cereal midott milk." I told him this bowl had cereal without milk in it which further infuriated him. It took me a few minutes to realize that he wanted cereal with hot milk. (These stories present better orally than in print as the accent adds more substance).

ON THE NORTH FORK

Dear Dan,

I just have to say that I LOVED your article on being normal, rich and super rich. It was GREAT. I really liked your advice at the end.

Although we still have our place on Three Mile Harbor, we will not be using it that much, and our children and relatives will be the ones who will be making the most use of it. I loved the Three Mile Harbor House and enjoyed working on it and the grounds, but unfortunately the town has become too jammed with excess traffic, angry, overbearing, impatient drivers, inflated egos and unsmiling people. It is a shame.

By the way, my roots out here also go pretty far back. My mother, Mary T. Cunningham, was born in Sag Harbor. I had aunts who lived on Shelter Island and I spent my childhood summers in South Jamesport.

Thanks again for a great article, Dan. I'm glad that your paper is available in Southold.

John D'Angelo

PECONIC BAY SOMETHING OR OTHER

Dear Dan,

This is not a question but a thank you for what I'm told was a nice article by Mary Foster about Peconic Bay Winery in the most recent edition. I have not seen it; my GM is sending me a copy. Mary Foster was very pleasant to speak with, and she was a thorough and well-prepared interviewer. I commend her to you. There is so much exciting movement on the North Fork. I thank you for your help in spreading the good news.

A side note: on your web page listing all the wineries, you have us listed as "Peconic Bay Vineyards." The new name is "Peconic Bay Winery." No big deal, but just for the record.

Village
Realty

Where clients become friends and houses become homes.©

We've been around for decades and we've put countless families into houses they love. And we've made countless friends while we're at it.

But this is a new century. We have a new generation of owner management. And we want to make all the good things we've been doing even better. So here's what we plan to do:

When you buy a house through Village Realty, you will get two truly valuable benefits absolutely free. No one else offers anything like this.

1. You will get a free consultation with a leading interior designer who will help you with anything from spiffing up colors to re-arranging walls.

2. You will get a free consultation with a leading landscape designer who will help you change your new yard into a dreamy garden.

We have thousands of listings right now, ranging from $225,000 to more than $19 million. Chances are there's something in-between for you.

Please stop in and visit our beautiful new office at 52 Main Street, East Hampton. We'd love to show you around and give you a shiny apple, just to get to know you.

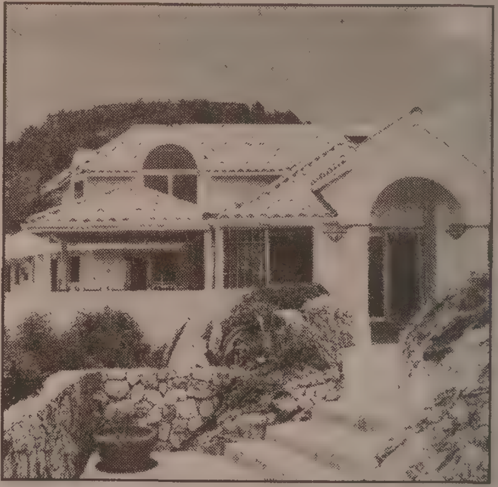
WOULD YOU LIKE A WEEK IN ST. MARTIN?



"We would like to swap our house in French St. Martin for a house in the Hamptons for one week in July or August of 2001. Our house has 4 bedrooms, each with its own bath, large living room, dining room, fully equipped kitchen, laundry room, TVs, VCRs, Stereo, tile floors, vaulted ceilings, outdoor dining, 3 patios, BBQ, new furnishings, security, maid service, pool & gardener. The house is on a bluff overlooking Simpson Bay, and has panoramic views of Anguilla, Saba, and St. Kitts. You are 5 minutes from beach, restaurants', and shopping. We would require 3-4 bedooms, 3-4 baths, pool, tennis court, and beach privileges. We would be interested in the area of Westhampton Beach, Quogue, Bridgehampton or Southampton. We are experienced house swappers for 10 years, and have swapped in the Hamptons before.

KIDS & TOBACCO

Kids should not smoke. Nor should they have access to tobacco products. We believe there is broad agreement on this important issue.

At Philip Morris USA, we are committed to dealing responsibly with the complex problem of underage smoking. There is no single, easy answer to this issue. Many experts suggest the best way to address underage smoking is through broad-based, integrated approaches that include communications, education, community involvement and access prevention.

As part of our commitment to play a role in reducing underage smoking, we have created a Youth Smoking Prevention Department whose sole purpose is to develop and support programs to help reduce the incidence of youth smoking. We've dedicated significant resources—over $100 million last year—toward initiatives based on the key components listed above. We are spending another $100 million against these initiatives in 2000.

Our effort includes support for school-based programs, one of which has been recognized for prevention excellence by the National Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and other national organizations. We're also running national advertising campaigns: one that encourages kids not to smoke, and one that urges parents to talk to their kids about not smoking.

To help prevent minors' access to tobacco products, we support and help fund the Coalition for Responsible Tobacco Retailing's nationwide "We Card" retailer education and training program. This effort has helped train over 500,000 retail store employees to reject attempted purchases by minors.

Working to help prevent youth smoking is important and it's the right thing to do for our company and for our employees. It's also the right thing to do on behalf of our shareholders and our adult customers. Everyone has a stake in solving the problem of underage smoking. At Philip Morris USA, we are working to help find answers.

For more information about our youth smoking prevention efforts, visit our Web site at www.philipmorrisusa.com. If you don't have Internet access, please call 1-877-PMUSAWEB.
